Cited by Educators

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education Thursday, President George W. Schneider on behalf of the board, presented a certificate of appreciation to the Kingston Daily Freeman for the publication of Scholars and Cents, the annual report of the board. This special section was published last August.

President Schneider also presented a certificate of appreciation to Louis R. Netter, managing editor, in recognition of his interest and personal editing of this special feature.

The board also passed a resolution recording its gratitude to the Kingston Daily Freeman and Managing Editor Netter for outstanding service to the Board of Education in the interest of public school education by the publication of "Scholars and Cents," the annual report of the board.

State Official Comments

Associate Superintendent Franklin H. Hazard released a copy of a letter he received from Dr. Walter W. Crewson, associate commissioner of State Education Department. The letter was written to Editor Netter and stated in part "I have come, in recent years, to see more clearly the key role that is at once the opportunity and even the duty of the local press in the whole task of providing sound and economical education for the children of the community."

"In many communities throughout our state and nation, the local editor's concept of the freedom of the press is often expressed in his willingness to highlight the minor failures which are inevitable in all operations so complex as a system of schools, and to permit the newspaper to become an instrument for stirring controversy."

"This is, in my view, evidence of a narrow and shallow perspective. To be sure, it is the responsibility of a good newspaper to point out major failures and errors in judgment on the part of local officials of any character."

Praises Approach

"But it is most refreshing to observe the statesmanlike approach of a newspaper to its public responsibility. A careful scrutiny of such presentations as Scholars and Cents reveals the balanced judgment of the newspaper. This is not blind acceptance of the program of education in all its aspects. It is rather the desire of a responsible citizen to set before the people an accurate picture of a public enterprise, with due emphasis on its accomplishments and its problems."

"I commend you highly for this evidence of your high concept of the function of The Kingston Daily Freeman. The ultimate result can only be a rising respect on the part of citizen readers, and their continued dependence on a responsible medium of communication for guidance in the formation of public policy."

Public Service Is Aim

In accepting the awards, the managing editor said "a significant development in the administration of school systems in our country in recent years is the effort upon the part of school administrators to acquaint parents and taxpayers with facts pertaining to the educational program and the realities of the growing school population. As a medium for the dissemination of this information, The Kingston Daily Freeman feels it is performing a public service and fulfilling a public responsibility."

"We are pleased that our assistance and cooperation has merited the appreciation of the Kingston Board of Education (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

New Terrorism Flares in Algeria

20 Slain, Five Are Wounded in Attacks Blamed on OAS

ALGIERS (AP)—A new wave of attacks staged in Oran, in the west. Five of them were shot to death in a car, then the car was set on fire.

A European man and two women were stoned by Moslems in a suburb of Oran. All three, including a woman seven months pregnant, were taken to a hospital by security forces who rescued them. At Ain Temouchent, southwest of Oran, four men believed to be secret army agents held up a branch of the Bank of Algeria and took $400,000.

No Arrests Reported

In three other holdups in Oran, gunmen escaped with $3,000 in cash, a truckload of military stores including 2,000 land mines, and a new car.

No arrests were reported in any of the cases. Algiers police announced 35 persons were arrested and a quantity of arms was found in two dawn raids. The raids took place in the area of the University of Algiers and on the hills above the city.

Close Merger Is Doubtful Again
For Syria, Cairo

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

CAIRO (AP) — Whatever the outcome of the upheaval in Syria, there is no sign of a revival of the previous Syrian-Egyptian marriage.

Sources in a position to know said today that President Gamal Abdel Nasser flatly opposes any tight merger such as the one that ended in bitterness and mutual distrust last September.

Looser Relationships

While the Egyptian president evidently would like to see Egypt and Syria back in the same political family, he is working now for some looser relationship in which each nation will retain its identity.

That also seems to be the idea of the military group currently in power in Damascus. Damascus Radio announced Thursday the formation of a new ruling military command and said it already was working toward unity with "other liberated Arab powers."

But the official statement said this unity must be on "a sound and genuine foundation and with conditions designed to insure Syria's dignity and avoid errors of the past."

Official and unofficial quarters in Cairo are still not sure where Syria is going. Air Force Gen. Mowafak Assassa is viewed as the emerging strongman, and he is already being criticized in the government-controlled Cairo press.

Court of Appeals
Says Wiltwyck Can Go to Westchester

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A school for neglected and delinquent boys has won its fight to build dormitories on land it owns in a suburban town in Westchester County.

The Court of Appeals directed Thursday that the Wiltwyck School for Boys Inc. be allowed to erect the buildings on 112 acres it purchased in Yorktown.

The school has been located in Esopus, Ulster County for a number of years. It is supported by charity. The City of New York and the state.

In other decisions, the state's highest court:

1. Dismissed the case against Lynne O'Neill of Lynbrook, L.I., who was convicted on charges of possession and mailing obscene photographs of herself, on the ground that evidence used at her trial had been obtained illegally.

2. Refused to hear an appeal by Beverly Adland of her suit to collect $5 million from the estate of the late Errol Flynn for alleged damages from "corruption and debauchery."

3. Set the week of May 7 for the execution of David Coleman, convicted of the rape-murder of a spinster in Brooklyn in 1959.

In the Wiltwyck decision, the court unanimously overruled lower courts and the Town of Yorktown Zoning Board and ordered the board to grant the school a building permit.

The town first barred the school from the area on the ground that it was not an educational institution. On the day the school took title to its property, Jan. 5, 1959, contending it was a charitable institution, the board amended the ordinance to exclude Wiltwyck again.

"It was arbitrary and unreasonable to hold" that Wiltwyck was not a school, the court said. The New York City board of education maintains a public school at Wiltwyck, an institution for New York City boys aged 8-12.

Easter Bunny Has
Saturday Date
On Wall Street

The Easter Bunny will be hopping into Kingston Saturday at 10 a. m. when he will hit the bunny trail along Wall Street, presenting the kiddies with jelly beans and Easter candy.

Arrival of the Easter Bunny for a "pre-Easter" visit is being sponsored by the Kingston Uptown Businessmen's Association.

Beginning at 10 a. m. the block between John and North Front Streets will be temporarily closed to traffic so that the Bunny may hop about the street to his heart's content, and for the safety of the children who are invited to meet him and partake of his Easter goodies.

In addition to the Easter Bunny, there will be a clown to entertain the kiddies and a program of music is being planned. Should it rain the event will be postponed until Saturday, April 14.

While the kiddies are being entertained by the Easter Bunny and the clown's antics, their elders will also be given an opportunity to visit Kingston's stores in the area and have a pre-view of the large selection of Easter offerings at the local stores.

Failure to Pay
Wages Charged
To Gotham Man

On complaint that he had failed to pay employee wages while operating the Saddlewyck Country Club Camp on Huguenot Street, New Paltz, during Sept. 1961, Martin Silver of New York City was picked up by state police Thursday and taken before Justice of the Peace John B. Tenaglia of Town of New Paltz to answer to the charge.

Under the warrant executed by Trooper John Huntoon, Silver was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. The matter was set down for a hearing on April 20 and Silver was committed to jail pending posting a $500 bail set by the justice.

Silver was president of the co-educational children's camp which ran into difficulties and has since been the subject of a sheriff's sale.

The warrant charged a violation of the labor law, in that he had failed to pay wages.

Time May Prove
Key Roadblock to Transit Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's plans to streamline transportation on land, sea and air are likely to run into a slow detour.

The big roadblock is time. The proposals, submitted Thursday in a 10,000-word message to Congress, contained far-reaching suggestions requiring preliminary action by five House committees before they can come to a vote in the House.

May Act This Year

Rep. Oren Harris, D-Ark., chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said there was a possibility his committee may act this year on the proposal dealing with rate reductions.

"But by no stretch of the imagination could you get it all this year," he added.

Rep. John B. Bennett of Michigan, top Republican on Harris' committee, said he saw no prospect for action of any kind this year. Bennett said he favored some of the President's proposals, especially those for cutting travel taxes and for putting rates on a more competitive basis.

But, he pointed out, Congress hopes to adjourn late in July or early August and it has many other major matters to consider. Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., promised that the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee would consider the proposals but said nothing about the likelihood of action this year.

Kennedy's transportation tax proposals could be the first facet of his complex program to be acted on in the House.

May Incorporate Ideas

Democratic leaders were considering incorporating at least some of these into a bill extending Korean wartime excise taxes, which lacking congressional action would expire on July 1. The Ways and Means Committee's timetable called for quick action on this bill next month, so the House may consider it early in June.

Kennedy's recommendation for repeal of the 10 per cent tax on surface transportation tickets, and reducing the rate to 5 per cent on airline tickets, was expected to be well received. There was considerable pressure for similar reductions when the Korean taxes were extended last year.

NAMED BY WALKER—Secretary of State Dean Rusk, right, was named by Edwin A. Walker, former Army major general, at a Washington hearing as a link with a mysterious secret apparatus bent on a "sell-out" of this country. Walker also named Walt Whitman Rostow, left, a top State Department planner, as influential in a secret "control apparatus" which the former general said always followed the "soft line on Communism." U.S., Soviets Work
Out Travel Accord

BERLIN (AP)—One dispute between the United States and Russia has been settled. As a result, the U.S. liaison mission in East Germany and the Soviet mission at U.S. headquarters in West Germany may once again move about without restriction.

Eases Atmosphere

The agreement Thursday between U.S. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke and Soviet Marshal Ivan S. Konev eased the atmosphere somewhat but brought no significant change — or even hope of "immediate change" in the general tension hanging over West Berlin.

Clarke, the U.S. Army commander in Europe, and Konev, the Soviet commander in East Germany, met in Potsdam, East Germany, to settle the dispute that developed after East German police shot up a U.S. mission car.

The two commanders agreed their missions at each others' headquarters would resume normal activity today. There was no public mention of the shooting incident.

Konev said after the shooting on March 20 that he was sorry about it, but Clarke termed this insufficient because the Russian did not guarantee the safety of the U.S. mission members.

Their First Meeting

The American commander ordered a military escort to shadow all movements of the Soviet mission in Frankfurt, West Germany. The Russians retaliated by banning any movement of the U.S. mission out of Potsdam without a special permit.

Gen. Clarke, who is retiring from the Army April 30, requested

Hope to Avoid Korean Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Army generals testified today that all U.S. soldiers and officers now undergo special training and indoctrination on Communist tactics.

The aim, the generals said, is to avoid a situation like that during the Korean War when some American prisoners collaborated with their Communist captors.

All Overseas Involved

Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, vice chief of staff, said "the soldiers are not being trained to become prisoners of war, but rather what their behavior should be if they unfortunately become prisoners."

Maj. Gen. Alva R. Fitch, assistant chief of staff for intelligence, said special training was provided for all Army personnel stationed overseas where Communist infiltration and espionage is likely.

The testimony of the generals was prepared for delivery to a special Senate Armed Services subcommittee investigating complaints that anti-Communist activities of military officers were censored or impeded.

Follow Walker on Stand

Their report was a low-key sequel to two days of emotionally charged testimony by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker who said he was "framed in a den of inquiry" for his anticommunist activities as a division commander in Germany.

Walker named Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Walt Whitman Rostow, a close adviser to President Kennedy, as two top figures in the den but did not accuse them directly of doing any framing.

Walker, now running for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas, quit the Army after being removed from his command and admonished on the ground that he had tried to influence soldier votes in the 1960 election and had labeled as pinks or Communists such Americans as former President Harry S. Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Throughout his two days on the committee stand, Walker played variations on one central theme: That there is a "sell-out" plot in high places to push a soft-on-Communism policy, and that those who oppose it are pilloried.

Rusk Shrugs It Off

Pressed near the end of his testimony Thursday to name influential figures in the secret control apparatus he said directs such a policy, Walker named Rusk and Rostow, who is now head of the policy planning council in the State Department.

Rusk, at the Capitol for another hearing, dismissed the testimony as not worthy of comment but did tell newsmen "I'm happy to be linked with Mr. Rostow—he is an able and close colleague."

The White House declined comment. Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., had asked the Army to outline its current methods of alerting the military and the public to cold war dangers of Communist subversion.

Previous witnesses testified that thousands of U.S. prisoners in Korea weakened under brainwashing and collaborated with the enemy. "The problems were not limited to lack of knowledge of communism and democratic institutions," (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Sees College Target
Date, September '63

September 1963 should be set as a target date for the opening of Ulster County Community College, Dean Paul B. Orvis of the State University told an informal gathering of local college trustees and committee members Thursday night.

Dr. Orvis, addressing the nine-member local board of trustees and the Board of Supervisors college committee at a dinner meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel here, outlined three steps to be taken by the trustees to initiate the college building program.

Lists Initial Steps

The initial steps he said should be for the trustees to organize, appoint a site committee, and appoint a committee to select a college president.

The establishment of a curricular and advisory committees could be accomplished after the initial steps had been taken, he said.

Relative to a site, Dean Orvis said that it should be centrally located, not too expensive to develop, and that the cost of building on the site should also be considered. He recommended the use of temporary quarters until a permanent site could be selected.

To expedite its organization the trustees unanimously selected Harry Rigby Jr., to serve as temporary chairman.

Set Next Meeting

Friday, April 13 was selected as the next meeting for the purpose of forming a permanent organization.

Dr. Orvis said the idea of community college was the first new idea in higher education that had been developed in this country in this century. He mentioned the great number already participated in the program and the tremendous growth anticipated in the future.

He commended Macdonald DeWitt, one of the trustees for his contribution to higher education and told the trustees that although they had been honored by their selection, the road ahead presented a heavy task and much hard labor.

Dr. Orvis said the relationship between the trustees and the Board of Supervisors must be close and both groups must have confidence in one another. He emphasized that there will never be politics in the program.

Bill Vetoed Giving
Welfare Board Power

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller vetoed today a Republican-backed measure that would have expanded sharply the role of the policy-making State Board of Social Welfare.

"Unsound," the governor said of the bill, which had initiated a backstage struggle between Senate Republicans on one side and the State Social Welfare Department and professional social workers on the other.

The veto was one of several actions the governor took on bills today. He signed one that places $100 million in state credit behind bonds to be issued by the Port of New York Authority for purchase of new railroad commuter cars.

The welfare bill would have taken from the welfare commissioner his authority to regulate local welfare operations according to broad policy outlines set by the board at its monthly meetings.

Administrative responsibility would have been placed solely in the hands of the board. The bill's proponents contended this step would give more direction to the much-criticized welfare administration in the state.

But Rockefeller, echoing sentiments expressed by the state chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, said:

"To shift these day-to-day administrative responsibilities to a multi-member policy-making body is unsound and contrary to accepted management principles."

The commuter-car bill implements a constitutional amendment authorized by the voters in the election last fall. Under it, the state would be liable should (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

Teacher Minimum Is
Hiked to $5,000 Here

A salary schedule was adopted at Thursday night's meeting of the Kingston City Schools (Consolidated) raising the minimum salary from $4,600 to $5,000.

It was also decided to contract with International Business Machines for data processing equipment to handle clerical records in more detail and faster than at present.

There was a discussion on equalization rates, and other matters during the meeting which lasted from 7:30 to 10:35 p. m.

Attending the session presided over by George W. Schneider, board president, were these members: Howard L. Fox, Andrew T. Gilday, David Kline, Benson Krom, Mrs. Edith Case Murphy, Bernard Singer and Arthur H. Withall. Mrs. Bertha H. Connelly, vice president, was absent.

A resolution was introduced by Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools, and passed, directing that Bank Brothers be given notice to act on their plumbing contract at the Mary's Avenue school under construction, or forfeit it.

The Ellenville election has been charged with violation of the city plumbing code by Charles Kelly, plumbing inspector. A court order stopped work by the firm which is also charged with not having a city plumbing license.

A three-day period for action is specified in the resolution directing that the Bank Brothers be notified.

Havana Detains 7 Frogmen May Be Treasure Seekers

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban authorities reported today seven North American citizens—described as “apparently” frogmen—have been arrested on the northern coast of Oriente Province.

A communique appearing in Havana newspapers said the men were picked up at 5 a.m. Thursday and were “detained.”

“Apparently they were frogmen,” the communique said. “Authorities are investigating to determine what their presence in our territory is due to.”

There was speculation in Miami that the men were missing treasure hunters who sailed from Pompano Beach, Fla.

The Coast Guard at Miami issued an alert Thursday night for vessels to report any sighting of the motorboat Pisces, overdue at Jamaica on a treasure hunting cruise of seven skin divers.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters said that skipper Gordon S. Patton and his mates normally would cruise between eastern Cuba (Oriente Province) and the Dominican Republic on a voyage in their 45-foot boat to Jamaica.

The Coast Guard explained that the route, called the Windward Passage, would allow small craft to island-hop among the Bahamas. The route is shorter than the alternate, passage around western Cuba.

Patton and his group had planned to do skin diving in exploring the Caribbean Sea floor for old shipwrecks.

With Patton on the Pisces when it left Florida Saturday were Fred Dixon Jr., Washington, D.C., and five other men whose names were not learned immediately.

Uptown Men Will Discuss Hours for Easter Shopping

Store hours for the Easter shopping season will be one of the important topics to be discussed at a meeting of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association, Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p. m. at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

President Richard Whittington urges that a good representation attend the meeting as there will be other matters of importance discussed.

Sees College

The gathering by Supervisor Roy J. Webber of Town of Marbletown, chairman of the Board of Supervisor's community college committee.

In addition to those mentioned, trustees present were Mrs. Elizabeth M. LeFever, Mrs. Ina C. Sartorius, Louis Berger, Bernard A. Feeney, Richard J. Whalen, Fabian L. Russell and Kenneth Davenport.

College committee members included Supervisors Alexander J. Banyo, Town of Ulster; James A. Rapp, First Ward; Roger W. Mabie, Town of Esopus, and John J. Gaffney of Town of Lloyd, Board of Supervisors minority leader.

Also attending were Jesse McHugh of Town of Shawangunk, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Peter M. Williams, majority leader; Robert A. Snyder, clerk of the board, and Bernhard S. Kramer, in charge of public relations for the meeting.

Supervisor McHugh opened the meeting with welcoming remarks. He said that in all his years in government, he felt that this was the most important project ever attempted by the county.

COLLEGE TRUSTEES WITH SUPERVISORS—A suggested target date of September 1963, initial steps for organizing and the appointment of a temporary chairman were the accomplishments of an informal dinner meeting Thursday night at Governor Clinton Hotel which included the newly appointed Ulster County Community College trustees, the Board of Supervisors college committee, other legislators and Dean Paul B. Orvis of the State University. Attending the session were (l-r) seated, Robert A. Snyder, clerk of the Board of Supervisors; trustees, Louis Berger, Macdonald DeWitt and Mrs. Elizabeth M. LeFever; Dean

Orvis, Mrs. Ina C. Sartorius, trustee; Roy J. Webber, chairman of the college committee and First Ward Supervisor James A. Rapp, committeemen; standing, Roger W. Mabie and Alexander J. Banyo, committeemen; Richard J. Whalen and Bernard A. Feeney, trustees; John J. Gaffney, committeeman and board minority leader; Jesse McHugh, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Peter M. Kramer, in charge of public relations. (Photo Workshop photo).

Goins Will Head W. Hurley Vols

James A. Goins of Spillway Road, West Hurley, was elected chief of the West Hurley Fire Department at the annual meeting Thursday at the West Hurley Fire House. He succeeds Chief Henry Hopkins.

Elected First Assistant Chief was Fred Myers; Second Assistant Chief, Louis DeGraff; Third Assistant Chief, Daniel Fochi. Clarence Ostrander was elected secretary-treasurer and the trustees named were Henry Hopkins, Howard Every and William Selig.

Approximately 70 men attended the meeting.

Generals' Say

Hamlett said. “Deficiencies in moral fiber, faith and discipline, as well as inability to withstand Communist techniques of group disintegration, collaboration, confession and informing were revealed.

Alert on Infiltration—“These are some of the areas to which we address ourselves in training.”

He said the 25th Division in Hawaii had a “realistic prisoner of war compound” and soldiers were subjected to “treatment similar to that accorded American prisoners of war during the Korean conflict.”

Fitch said troops in Europe receive special indoctrination because they “are more exposed to intensive intelligence activity by the Soviet, East German and Polish intelligence services.”

Special precautions are taken, Fitch said, against the “possibility of Communist infiltration into the Army.”

Three Cases in Court

Gerard Sauer, 50, of 28 Stuyvesant Street, charged with third degree assault, was given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail by Special City Judge Hugh R. Elwyn today. His wife, Ida was listed as complainant. Hearing on a charge dealing with an alleged violation of the unemployment insurance law, against Mary E. Gross, 52, of Route 5, Box 127, Sunset Terrace, Lucas Avenue Extension, was put over to April 12. Juan Cruz Gonzales, of 73 Franklin Street, charged with a stop-sign violation, was fined $10.

Sawkill Firemen Save Little Girl Who Was Choking

A 3-year old Sawkill girl was saved by the prompt action of the Sawkill Volunteer Fire Company Wednesday afternoon after she had been seized with convulsions and had stopped breathing.

At approximately 5:15 p. m., Sawkill Volunteer Fire Company was summoned to administer oxygen to Jodi Goldpaugh, 3, who was choking and when firemen arrived had turned blue.

The little girl resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Goldpaugh on the main road in Sawkill. She had been ill and suddenly went into convulsions and stopped breathing.

Neighbors were summoned who in turn called the fire company while her father, William Goldpaugh, administered mouth to mouth breathing.

President Eugene Phillips and Fire Police Chief Wayne Burton arrived quickly at the scene with the resuscitator to find the little girl already blue. It was reported the father's efforts had resulted in a few occasional breaths. With the application of oxygen she was soon breathing again.

Another fireman, Herbert Dixon, took the little girl in his car, with oxygen, to the Benedictine Hospital where the diagnosis of her ailment was tonsillitis. She remained at the hospital for further care. Mrs. Goldpaugh expressed her deep appreciation for use of the fire company resuscitator, which undoubtedly saved the child's life.

Fire Chief Francis Joy of Sawkill Fire Company was present at the scene and directed activities. Several other firemen responded to the call for aid but their assistance was not required.

Later Thursday night the fire company was called out for a brush fire at the traffic circle off Route 28. The fire was out on arrival of the firemen.

On Monday night, April 9, Sawkill Volunteer Fire Company will conduct the annual election of officers. This includes chief, assistant chief, captain and first and second lieutenants. All members of the company are urged to attend the election.

I am moving to Albany and must sell my beautiful 3-bedroom split-level home at 19 Stahlman Place and it will be open for inspection all weekend. It has 1 1/2 baths and a large garage. We have giant shade trees that cover our large rear spacious lawn; and of course, the rest of the land is nicely landscaped. We have a nice screened-in porch and a terrific recreation room. Our kitchen is as modern as today, with built-in electric range and oven, electric dishwasher and garbage disposal. The entire house is fully carpeted wall-to-wall and the master bedroom is air conditioned. Our entire taxes are $280 a year. I have taken pride in keeping our home in perfect A-1 condition, and some lucky family will get all of this for good comfortable living in an excellent residential area. I am only asking $19,500 for everything, but will consider any reasonable offer. Interested parties are requested to please call for an appointment FEderal 8-9162.

See Cankerworms As Early Problem

SYRACUSE — Extension specialists at the State University College of Forestry at Syracuse University today advised homeowners that this is the time of the year to be on the lookout for cankerworms.

According to the Forestry College authorities, these tree pests are capable of doing considerable damage to shade, ornamental and orchard trees.

To obtain a free copy of a four-page, illustrated leaflet, "Cankerworms," which describes the common spring and fall cankerworms and their control, mail a postal card to:

Extension Division, State University College of Forestry at Syracuse University, Syracuse 10.

The publication explains that caterpillars of both species make their appearance on trees in early spring. They destroy the young leaves and buds of common, deciduous trees. Elm and apple trees, plus oaks in the southeastern part of New York State and Long Island, are their favorites.

By the time the larvae finish feeding, only the veins and mid-ribs of the older leaves remain. If a tree is completely defoliated two or three years in a row, it may die or be seriously weakened.

In areas where Dutch elm disease is present, the Forestry College authorities note that cankerworms are important pests to control since they may seriously defoliate elms.

For further information, contact the Syracuse Forestry College.

The college's Tree Pest Information Service is but one part of the year-around public information and education programs conducted by the State University College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

Where the long way home is sweetest!

If he's a few minutes late tonight—well, who could blame him?

For there's an open road—and a spring evening—and a new Cadillac car. And that's a combination to bring out the wanderlust in any young man.

Let's take a few minutes out and ride with him as he takes the sweep of the boulevard.

What's it like, sitting there in the driver's seat of a beautiful new Cadillac car?

Well, first of all it's quiet. The car is so soundly built—and so precisely engineered—that only the rushing wind breaks the silence.

Driving seems the automatic response to wishing.

VISIT YOUR LOCAL AUTHORIZED CADILLAC DEALER

The wheel turns with the weight of your hand—and the gentlest pressure of your foot sends the car instantly ahead or brings it to a smooth, silken stop.

And how inspiring it is to have command of the "car of cars"! Certainly, it should be no surprise that the miles ahead are so tempting—when the miles behind have been so wonderful.

Someday soon, when there's a touch of spring in the air—and a touch of adventure in your spirit—visit your dealer and take the wheel of the "car of cars".

You'll quickly discover that this is the perfect season to drive home in a Cadillac of your own.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 6, 1962

NEW NATIONALISM

A good many people in this country say that what with the United Nations, the World Court, and other international agencies breathing down our necks, we are heading inescapably toward some kind of world government.

Yet curiously, while this fear is being strongly expressed in quarters outside the U.S. government, within the government much of today's guarded optimism about the world situation seems founded on the upsurge of nationalism all over the globe.

Both the public and the private utterances of our top foreign affairs officials add up to this same point.

They are deeply impressed that 40-odd new nations have come into being since World War II without tumbling into communism. They say intense nationalism is a big reason. And they have confidence that the Reds will be steadily rebuffed by the nationalist spirit abroad in Africa and Asia.

Moreover, it is felt this very same spirit is working against the Communists in their own backyard. Yugoslavia is an old example. Albania is another.

Most spectacular of all is Red China, and a whole host of U.S. diplomatic specialists seem to be giving more and more weight to the Moscow-Peking split.

No responsible authority takes the view that such powerful nationalisms as these have the effect of wiping away the threat of Communist world conquest. The conviction is nevertheless strong that the currents at work in many corners of the earth are not working for the Reds.

The old argument has always been that widespread poverty and discontent in the newly emerging countries must surely serve the exploiting strategies of the Communists. Experience is showing that many of these peoples love their independence above all.

Such new nations as have toyed with Communist notions, including Ghana and Guinea, have more recently been giving small fits to some of their Red mentors.

In so ancient a land as Afghanistan, the neighboring Russians filtering in to lend "aid" do not even talk communism. To the fiercely independent Afghans, they present themselves simply as helpful Russian neighbors.

Again and again reports come to our top diplomats that communism as a doctrine preaching world unity under a sole authority is just not selling.

We need only look at Berlin, Laos, South Viet Nam, Cuba and parts of South America to realize that the menace from Moscow and Peking is still immense. But a heartening feeling grows that time runs hard against them.

AIRLINES IN A BIND

Though sleek jetliners cut a spectacular swathe in the sky, to the airlines they represent another element in the rising costs which threaten bankruptcy. As aircraft become bigger and more complex, they also become more costly: four and a half million dollars for today's jet; perhaps 20 for tomorrow's supersonic airplane.

This is not to say that there is anything wrong with jets, as such. It is mentioned to illustrate the financial bog in which carriers find themselves. For six straight years now, none of the 11 major companies has produced the minimum profit regarded by the Civil Aeronautics Board as vital for the health of America's airlines.

Expensive equipment would be no problem were profits sufficient to cover the cost. Instead, carriers have had to borrow money to buy equipment. With interest costs piled on top of everything else, a vicious circle ensues which threatens to put the lines in a category with our ailing railroads.

Transportation specialists think they see a way out in the inclination for merger. There are potential dangers to the public interest in such a trend, but the dangers can be minimized by proper supervision. If duplication—and even, in some cases, triplication—of routes can be avoided through mergers without too greatly weakening the element of competition, this means might be a way to new strength.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
EXPROPRIATION

It is becoming increasingly customary for officials of new revolutionary governments to seize American property as has recently been done in Cuba and in Brazil; as had earlier been done in Red China and Soviet Russia. As a matter of practice, the United States in recent years has done nothing about such expropriations. During earlier administrations, particularly in the Theodore Roosevelt and Taft Administrations, the United States pursued what came to be known as "Dollar Diplomacy," by which was meant that the United States not only protected American life but also American property.

Since the Franklin Roosevelt Administration, American policy on this subject had to change because when Roosevelt recognized Soviet Russia, he ignored the fact that Russia had expropriated American property in Russia without compensation of any kind. It used to be true, particularly in countries where the United States exercised extraterritorial jurisdiction, that any company could register at a consulate as an American company. In 1924, Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes held that:

"The question, however, as to the extent to which this government should afford such a corporation assistance in a foreign country is one which may properly be governed in large measure by the nature and extent of the American interests involved."

When an expropriation takes place, these stockholders have been robbed as though their pockets had been picked. Benjamin Javits, President of the United Shareowners of America, makes the point that American industry is owned by 16,000,000 shareowners. When the Brazilian government, for instance, expropriated American property in Brazil, the property of a duly franchised American company, it actually steals the possessions of the shareowners of that property. It is after such an event that our government entertains President Joao Goulart of Brazil!

Are we to finance the Brazilian government in its depredations as we gave Stalin $11,000,000 to become our principal enemy?

The real difficulty is that whereas we speak of ours as a capitalist country, we do not quite mean what we say. Capitalism is the investment of our surplus above the necessities of life in the economy of a country at the risk of the investor, who hopes to profit, but may lose.

When, however, the government encourages companies to take a share of their investments abroad, it assumes a specific responsibility, at any rate, to protect that investment from expropriation, which simply means "taking away" without any regard to the rights of the shareowners in their own property or the economy of the United States. At that point, we need to do something about it.

In the old days, when we were a proud nation, and were putting considerable money into Latin American enterprises, we did do something about it. We sent the Marines and maintained the Monroe Doctrine. But it was impractical to do that when the Russian Bolsheviks seized American property. We were not ready to go to war with Soviet Russia. We did send an army to Siberia to prevent Japan from seizing the Trans-Siberian Railroad from Lake Baikal east, an act which prevented the partitioning of Russia among the Allies early enough to contain the Bolsheviks in a small and perhaps unconquerable area. This failed and has since been discussed with numerous and singular dictators by so-called experts.

As it became increasingly impractical to deal with Soviet Russia, efforts to protect American property or even American life in Communist countries ceased altogether. A diplomatic note is not an effort. It is a waste of paper, ink and personnel. The proof that I am correct in this interpretation is that that country after country has engaged in expropriation, the worst being Red China and Cuba, with Brazil the most recent.

While there is a flight of capital from the United States and an export of jobs to Western Europe and Japan, American jobs wisdom in keeping their money out of those countries which have a history of expropriation.

Pink Eye May Be Caused

By Air-Borne Allergen

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Every spring I get an attack of pink eye that makes me miserable for a couple of weeks. I've used all sorts of eye washes but nothing seems to help. Have you any suggestions?

A—You probably have what's known as a vernal conjunctivitis, another way of saying "pink eye" in the "spring." If so, it's an allergic hypersensitivity reaction that's like rose or hay fever with which it's often associated. Quite likely, the villain is some air-borne allergen such as pollen. If you don't want to have a string of skin tests, why don't you mark the exact date when you're first affected and check it against the pollenation dates of the grasses, weeds, plants, etc., in your immediate vicinity?

With this information at hand, you may be able to be desensitized by a series of immunizing "shots." If not, your doctor can afford you considerable relief by prescribing eye drops that contain one of the ACTH products. However, be sure to use these drops strictly according to his orders since overdoses may be harmful to the delicate tissues of the eye.

Q—What can be done to cure leucorrhea?
A—Leucorrhea ("the whites") is a symptom, not a disease. It can be controlled and eliminated only by discovery and elimination of the cause. The cause may be a birth injury, an infection or a growth. If you try to self-cure the symptom with douches, you will not be successful. You may even do harm by increasing irritation and making it more difficult for your doctor to eliminate the cause. Please go immediately for a thorough examination.

While on the subject of douches, it may be of interest to women other than my correspondent to learn that most gynecologists hold to the view that douching is useless if not harmful. There also is general agreement that, if douching must be employed, the safest and most successful solution is one prepared by adding two to four tablespoonfuls of household vinegar to two quarts of warm water.

Q—Can anything be done to prevent the formation of kidney stones? I've tried diets and I've had two operations but just last week I had another attack. I passed a stone but I'm told there are more to come and I live in dread of another operation.
A—You may think it far-fetched but there is a chance that you are suffering from an overabundance of parathyroid secretion. The parathyroids are four tiny glands that, as their name implies, lie in the vicinity of the thyroid or goiter gland in the neck. Sometimes they, or small growths within them, produce more secretion (parathormone) than they should. When that happens, the blood level of lime (calcium) rises and large amounts of lime pass out in the urine. These salts form the nucleus of the kidney stone.

One That Won't Get Away

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The coming showdown fight between supporters and opponents of the United Nations presents complex issues.

On one side is the Kennedy administration, committed to all-out cooperation with the United Nations as a basic principle of U.S. foreign policy. The President believes that from 80 to 85 per cent of the people support the U.N. He cites public opinion surveys, one of which shows 90 per cent of the people polled against U.S. withdrawal from the U.N.

On the other side are highly vocal opponents of the U.N. and all its works, citing a wide variety of reasons.

Some are outright isolationists who do not believe in any kind of international co-operation. Some believe that the U.N. is a failure because it has not already achieved world peace.

Some believe the U.N. has not been effective in blocking Communist expansion. Some believe the U.N. itself is run by Communists. U.N. military operations against Katanga are cited as evidence.

Some are opponents to foreign aid who lump U.N. contributions to the U.N. in that category. Some believe the U.S. is paying more than its share of U.N. costs, which is 32 per cent, and over 50 per cent of special assessments.

THERE IS SOME PERSONAL grudge fighting from people who would like to see Adlai Stevenson removed from office as U.S. ambassador to the U.N. There is lurking racial discrimination from people who resent the presence in the U.N. of 20-odd poverty-stricken new African members, each with one vote equal to that of the U.S.

All this bitterness is welling to the surface in the current congressional battle over President Kennedy's proposal that the United States buy $100 million or half of the U.N. 25-year, 2-per cent bond issue. The proceeds are intended to keep the U.N. from going bankrupt by financing its peace-keeping activities in places like the Gaza strip and the Congo.

Four alternate plans have been suggested by Senators Aiken, R-Vt., Dirksen, R-Ill., Russell, D-Ga., and Clark, D-Pa., with nine other senators as cosponsors of Clark's proposal.

To best off Republican proposals to make the bonds repayable in three years—which might be impossible—the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came up with a compromise. It would provide for outright U.S. purchase of $25 million in bonds, with $75 million more being bought on a matching basis as other countries make purchases. Since nearly $50 million has already been subscribed the President accepted this amendment.

EVEN MORE ACCEPTABLE to the administration would be Senator Clark's proposal. It calls for financing the U.S. $100 million purchase by the sale of a like amount of 25-year, 2 per cent U. S. Peace Bonds to the general public. This idea is really the brain child of Rep. Frank Kowalski, D-Conn.

State and Treasury departments and the Budget Bureau were at first reluctant to embark on anything that might interfere with the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds. But Treasury Secretary Dillon and Under Secretary of State Ball now have given the Peace Bonds their blessing, with obvious White House approval because the Peace Bonds would not compete with the shorter term, higher interest rate Savings Bonds.

An important side effect of the Peace Bond proposal is that it would give supporters of the U. N. a chance to demonstrate their faith in and support of the world organization. An over-subscription would be public endorsement of the U. N. But if the Peace Bonds didn't sell, it would be another black eye.

In the course of congressional debate on the bond issue, the whole program of the United Nations will be reviewed. A number of senators backing the Clark bill are planning to take the floor for major addresses on foreign policy. One of their purposes will be to answer the criticisms of U. N. opponents and the doubts expressed by those who, like Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., think more American reliance should be placed on regional organizations like NATO than on the U. N.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

HARLINGEN, Tex. — Ralph Juillard, once of Fort Wayne, Ind., was at my door at precisely 5 o'clock, as he had promised. He was in khaki and sneakers and an old hat. I was going fishing on the Colorado arroyo, an offshoot of the Rio Grande where it divides into stringy meanderings in the last miles of its journey to the Gulf of Mexico. Why do I make such reckless commitments late the night before? Mr. Juillard is much younger, but I doubt that he will ever feel as old as I felt then; tired from travel in oscillating planes in blizzard and low clouds and from long days at the typewriter and hard nights among many strangers. I put a few weary words to the last paragraph and we struck off for his camp.

On the way we drove past a rickety plane under a shelter. A grease monkey was going over it and Mr. Juillard said, "You might remember that young fellow's father. He was a New York newspaperman named Jeff Burke. This kid says he was a great editor."

Jeff Burke? Yes; on the Daily News in its early days on Park Place and I think he was badly hurt falling down those wide stairs which had no rail in the center so that people got dizzy and lost their balance. I knew him. A good man, and his kid is better off flying a crop-duster in the Lower Rio Grande Valley than fighting the crowds in the New York subways and the buses whose drivers so heartily hate mankind.

Juillard is now the general manager of three conservative newspapers in the Valley, called the Freedom Group. He said he wouldn't change jobs and his way of living with any other newspaper executive in the world. And he wouldn't work and live in New York for any money or title.

Dark was coming on as we pulled into his camp. We had a quick drink and went down to the bathhouse where he slipped a belt on a wheel and snapped a switch. The bathhouse door went up, the boat slid down the skids with the keel riding on rollers, and we climbed aboard. He tipped the engine and propeller over the stern, spun the starter and headed downstream for shrimp to bait the bass. Dark patches of duck took off close to our bows. The rattlers would be out in a few days, dead, innumerable. He had shot a rat-ter's head off in a duck blind which just missed him only because he had become conscious of a slight persistent hiss and turned his head in time. You have to expect them.

More than 200 years ago the deadly Karankaws infested this coast from Galveston to some undefined end of their domain down in Mexico. They had no guns, they were stupid and they lost many people to the snakes and the big fish of the Gulf, for they had no real trails and they were almost as much in the sea as in the swamps.

Ed Kilman, a Houston journalist, did a book on the Karanks, or Karankas, three years ago, a page of Indian lore in the big history of those strange people which otherwise might have been lost. They were "lowering ogres with saurian eyes who roamed the shore and slithered among the thickets."

They may not have been cunning but "in extreme hunger, resorted to worms, bugs and spiders and relished spoiled meat." They were six to seven feet tall but facially hideous and notoriously cannibalistic—"the scourge of the frontier."

Well, they wouldn't be along tonight to molest law-abiding, tax-paying, God-fearing American fishermen on Ralph Juillard's dock because Mr. Kilman's book, "Cannibal Coast," assured us that about 1850, the last dozen Karanks encountered a bunch of Rio Grande Indians, who also were cannibals, and "our man-eaters were devoured by other man-eaters." That wasn't so long ago, was it?

Across the arroyo brahmas bulled through the mesquite on one of the greatest ranches of a wilderness.

Something took my hook, but the line barely lifted and we slack. This happened over and over. In humility, I got one bass about a foot long—all night. I am always catching one nasty little fingerling in "teeming" waters. In Lake Mead, I got one perch in 2 days. Is this personal or is it fate?

We had steak for dinner and settled vast affairs. They are all conservative. Their county, Cameron, went for Nixon and for Tower for Senator. And their Congressman, Joe Kilgore, a Democrat and a war bomber pilot but conservative, voted against President Kennedy on packing the Rules Committee. Then the Pentagon took away an Air Force base with a payroll of about $25 million a year and a Naval jet air station with from 300 to 400 men. But a community can't ask to live on war so they were doing their best to bring in free enterprise. A thousand good small homes have been abandoned by the service people. These places are surely going to ruin unless new people buy soon. The tourists who come here are the type who "bring one shirt and one ten dollar bill and don't change either all winter."

But the Valley gets four crops a year of most things and the shrimp and fish are constant. In three years the citrus will be back after the terrible freeze.

"Let's not panic," Mr. Juillard wrote when the sad word came from the Pentagon. "We've had disasters like this for years."

He is a very handy man. When his father died leaving less than $2, his mother took in boarders and he got a job after school in a wallpaper place. He never went to college but he did join the Marines. When some unions struck a paper he not only turned to and ran a linotype but in one day did three days' work of a union man and did it better than most. He can run any machine in a modern shop and talk turkey with any other publisher in the country—and he wouldn't take the job of publisher in Chicago or New York at any price.

So They Say..

I have come to regard the misrepresentation (abroad) of American life and purposes by the movies and television as a subtler and more disastrous form of treason than the activities of 100 saboteurs.

—Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, United Church of Christ.

I was hardly prepared for Africa, this determination to explode into the second half of the 20th century, this sense of urgency that, ready or not, here we come.

—Edward R. Murrow, U. S. information director, in Congo.

I'm not a bum. I used to work steady in the bowling alleys until these automatic pin setters got my job. I'm a victim of automation.

—Andrew West Jr., 36, of El Segundo, Calif., dismissed of home he had made in a galvanized culvert pipe.

At five cents, a first-class letter would still be one of the greatest bargains available to the American public.

GAUGES ARE PRODUCED ON GAGE STREET—Harry C. Kaprelian, who heads the Charles Ramsey Corp. and is also president of Wright Gage Inc., 15 Gage Street, holds one of a modern type gauge produced by one of the city's comparatively new small industries. Albert J. White, vice-president of Wright Gage Inc., designed the gauges over a period of years. Plans for expansion are under way. The corporation uses the name "Gage" because of its location on Gage Street. (Freeman photo).

Meet Growing Demand for Accuracy

Local Gauges Used on Space Missiles and Space Vehicles

By CHARLES R. DOUGLAS
Freeman Staff Writer

One local, small industry now gaining notice, it appears, is entitled to a long-range view of its future mainly because it is dealing with space as well as time.

It is Wright Gage Inc., 15 Gage Street, of which Harry C. Kaprelian, who heads the Charles Ramsey Corp. is president. It makes precision inspection gauges and deals with manufacturers doing government work including those in the field of missiles and space vehicles.

Will Exhibit Here
New England was introduced to its output through an industrial gauge exhibit at Hartford Conn. last month and another exhibit is to be held soon in the Kingston area.

The exhibit over East was sponsored by Wright Representatives, Tools & Gauges Unlimited, and along with the Wright line of dial gauges, instruments offering amplification in millions, optical and electrical gauges, were on display. Lectures were given on types of gauging methods.

Some 35 different dial gauges, including stock and modifier items, were exhibited by Wright

Gage, including dial bore gauges, dial snap gauges, dial groove gauges, large diameter dial gauges and setmasters. Some 70 guests of management level from New England industrial plants attended. They represented concerns engaged in government contract work in the missile and space vehicle fields, material handling, bearings, jet engines, and others.

Two Years in Developing

Dial gauge products, Kaprelian said, are in use by all manufacturers related in metal-working fields. "Their flexibility and accuracy for the visual control of dimensional variations within specific tolerances," he said, "has contributed to the growing demand in industry for this type of precision gauging. The concern has been in the development stage for some two years."

Wright Gage Inc., he said, "introduces a new concept of design in the dial gauge field." Albert J. White, vice president of Wright Gage Inc., designed the gauges over a period of years. They are being produced at the Gage Street plant where 50 workmen are employed, but a new plant is planned. Six others are employed at the Greenkill Machine Co., Bloomington.

Explains Design

Design of the gauges, Kaprelian said, is based on a unique "building block" theme, "to provide a simplified and expedient method to layout and package specific gauge units from off-the-shelf components. Utilizing this new system, components can be joined or slipped together into hundreds of combinations to provide a necessary dial gauge assembly. The system offers 100 per cent reusable precision-made gauging components capable of building dial gauges to serve practically all universal gauging requirements."

The "building block" system of gauge design, he said, "has endless possibilities, but the manufacturer will recognize immediately the advantages through reduced inspection costs, shorter lead time, minimum inventory of gauge products, and a chance to specify special gauging wherever it should be used."

Plans for future activity, he said, "include extensive research and development to extend their current product line within the vast scope of their building block pattern, and also to expand their sales representation on a national level. The latter has been established in 12 states where sales and service activities are conducted by personnel thoroughly familiar with, and recognized as gauging specialists." Today, he said, "if a change in design or requirements affect the alterations or cancellations of production parts, a dial gauge does not become obsolete."

Fire Destroys Plant

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The Wells Color and Chemical Co. plant was destroyed Thursday in a fire that caused an estimated $250,000 damage.

Firemen said flames from a grass fire spread to the three-story, frame structure.

Asst. Chief Richard Sweeney of the Johnstown Fire Department suffered singed eyebrows. No other injuries were reported.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wells, owner of the leather-tanning factory, estimated the loss.

Victor Hugo was rejected four times by the French Academy before he was finally admitted. Emile Zola was nominated 19 times and was never admitted.

Jersey Is Taking Another Step on Teeners' Drinking

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey police will cross into New York to interview tavern owners, local police and municipal officials about New Jersey teenagers going to New York to buy alcoholic beverages, Co. Joseph D. Rutter, State Police chief, says.

The move will be another step in efforts to crackdown on New Jersey youths who drive to New York where the minimum age for drinking is 18. It is 21 in New Jersey. Rutter also announced meetings were being arranged with officials in the northern counties bordering on New York and also of Middlesex and Union counties to discuss the problems.

Rutter said the interviews and conference are in line with a directive issued Monday by State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills for a full scale attack on the problem of the teen-aged drinkers.

Brush and Grass Fires Flare Anew

The respite which volunteer firemen gained by recent rains, apparently is over and once again the County Fire Control Center on Golden Hill is being swamped with calls for grass and brush fires.

Over the past 24-hours some 20 brush and grass fires have been reported in the county, Ulster County is not alone, Greene County firemen had 11 calls.

Despite warnings as to the danger of setting brush and grass fires or burning rubbish without close attention, a serious fire on the Allgerville-Accord road resulted about 2 p. m. yesterday when a man attempted to burn pine boughs on a snowbank within 10 feet of a house.

Sparks ignited the shingle roof and before firemen from Accord under Chief Edward Carle and Stone Ridge firemen had extinguished the fire the roof of the two-story house and the second floor was badly damaged. There was also water damage throughout the house which was a part of the Louis Cohen Orchard Bungalow Colony. It was formerly known as the Greenfield property.

Chief Carle reportedly an ample supply of water from the nearby creek had made it possible for firemen to prevent greater damage.

The fire started when a man attempted to burn pine boughs which had been placed on a snowbank in a shaded portion of the yard only about 10 feet from the house.

High Falls firemen were summoned but did not reach the scene in time to give assistance.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market relapsed into its usual mixed pattern in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .30 at 256.30 with industrials up .60, rails up .10 and utilities down .10.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point prevailed among most key stocks. An assortment of more volatile selected issues made wider moves.

Retails, steels, rails, tobaccos and drugs were mixed.

Texas Gulf Producing dropped a couple of points but halved the loss later. Amerada advanced as much as 2 before clipping the gain slightly.

Up about 3 points were Crown Cork and Cuetit Peabody. Xerox added another 2 points.

Up a point or better were Brunswick, Walter E. Heller, General Dynamics and Grumman.

Ford, up more than a point, stood out among the motors. General Motors gained a fraction.

Union Carbide and Phelps Dodge were among fractional gainers.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.18 at 702.06.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were firm. U.S. government bonds rebounded from Thursday's sell-off.

EDITOR CITED BY EDUCATORS—The Kingston Daily Freeman and its managing editor, Louis R. Netter (second from right) were cited at the Thursday night Kingston Board of Education meeting for "outstanding civic services performed in the interest of public school education." A certificate of appreciation signed by George W. Schneider, president of the Board of Education; Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of Kingston Schools, Consolidated, and Frank H. Hazard, associate superintendent, was presented to The Freeman's managing editor. The certificate cited publication by The Freeman of Scholars and Cents, the annual report of the Board of Education. Participating in the brief ceremony during the meeting were (l-r) Dr. Soper, Schneider, and Hazard. (Freeman photo).

Freeman, Editor

(Consolidated) and the commendation of the associate commissioner of the University of the State of New York. We are profoundly grateful for the awards and the expressions recorded by the education board.

Creates Desired Interest

Associate Superintendent Hazard explained that each year since 1955, the annual report of the board has been published under the title Scholars and Cents. This past August the Kingston Daily Freeman published Scholars and Cents as a special section as a matter of public service. This novel method of reporting has created considerable interest throughout New York State as well as nationwide.

The September 1961 issue of Trends, a public relation publication of the National Education Association, Hazard said, continued a very favorable report of Scholars and Cents. "As a result of this national coverage, interest in and requests for copies of our annual report were received from as far away as California," he reported.

Some time ago, Mr. Hazard received a request for a copy of Scholars and Cents from Dr. Edward F. Wilcox, assistant commissioner of education of the State of Rhode Island. "Dr. Wilcox used this publication," he said, "to show at a meeting of school superintendents in that area how we in Kingston have used the local newspaper in informing the public on budgetary matters."

A Good Arrangement

"I believe that the City of Kingston, and the Board of Education in particular, are very fortunate for the very high quality of reporting on matters of education by the Kingston Daily Freeman," Mr. Hazard said. "Recently, I attended a course of study at Columbia University where school officials from New York State were attending to learn the techniques of publishing school facts for the public. I found that the greatest complaint of this group was the apparent lack of local newspapers to set before the public an accurate picture of the operation of the public schools, with proper and objective emphasis on the accomplishments and problems. I have always found The Freeman and its staff willing to present our story in its proper setting. I would like to express my appreciation on behalf of the Board of Education and the Kingston City Schools to Mr. Lou Netter and his staff, for their interest, encouragement and generosity with newspaper space in helping us keeping the citizens of Kingston properly informed."

BRIDGE Ruffing Skill Nets Small Slam

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

North's hand was almost worth a jump to three spades—almost, but not quite—therefore he contented himself with a mere raise to two. Then after South made his short suit game try of three clubs, North wanted to show this maximum holding. How was he going to do this?

The method used was a raise to four clubs. This wasn't a serious effort to show a club suit. Who wants to play clubs after spades have been bid and raised? Instead, it showed a maximum single raise that had been improved by knowledge that South's shortest suit was clubs, and that raise included the club ace.

South's four diamond rebid showed that ace, and North was willing to show his ace of hearts. South's jump to five spades was optimistic but not unsound and North was certainly justified in going to the slam.

The play at six was easy, but it was worthy of study as it shows proper cross-ruff technique.

South had three potential diamond losers. He could ruff two and try to discard one on a long heart, but the odds were

Blood Test Fails To Substantiate Traffic Charges

Frank W. Hommel, assessor for the Town of Saugerties, who was issued a summons following a mishap on Hill Street in the village Friday, involving damage to Saugerties Village police car, pleaded guilty Thursday to a speeding charge when he appeared before Village Justice G. Thomas Res Jr.

Imposition of fine was suspended. The violation was in a 10 mile-per-hour zone. Hommel was exonerated of the charge, driving while intoxicated when the blood test report from Kingston Laboratory showed an insufficient amount of alcohol content for conviction of driving while impaired, Police Chief Harold Mills said today.

Attorney William D. Brinier III, appeared for Hommel. Several persons miraculously escaped injury during the series of incidents on Hill Street involving the village patrol car in its third accident since purchased in December.

Patrolman Leonard Robins, who was operating the car at the time, reported that a hit and run driver sheared off a utility pole and damaged a fire hydrant on Hill Street at the intersection of Theodore Place near the C. A. Lynch Firehouse. The mishap occurred about 2:35 a. m. with Patrolman Jack Washburn and Robins investigating.

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., linemen and Mandeville Diaz, water department superintendent were called to the scene and flames set out to warn traffic, Robins said.

The patrolman said he parked the police car across the driving lane near Ann Street, to protect the men working on the utility pole and hydrant.

Hommel, proceeding toward the village, rounded a sharp turn at the top of Hill Street, was unable to halt in time, and struck the police car in the rear door, Robins said.

According to Acting Chief Mills a new door for the patrol car is expected to be delivered today and will be installed on the car Saturday.

More Money Lost Than Made Playing Warrants

Q—"I've been trying to build up my knowledge of the stock market. Just what are warrants and what is your opinion of them as a speculative medium?" G. S. A—Many readers have asked me about warrants, and if it's all right with you, I'd like to make this a group reply.

Warrants represent the right to buy a given stock at a fixed price, sometimes with no time limit but usually within a specified period. Aside from this right warrants are worthless. They represent no ownership in a company, and they pay no dividends.

Stock warrants are pretty much the same as real estate options which give the holder the right to acquire property under specified conditions.

The speculative attraction in warrants is that they normally sell well below the price of the stock to which they are tied. There is another side to the coin, of course. If the stock falls, you are likely to suffer a far greater percentage of loss in your warrants than in the related shares themselves.

Today, most warrants are fully priced and usually command a substantial premium over their option values. Money is made in warrants but mostly by professionals and knowledgeable people who are able to devote a great deal of study to this medium.

Unless you fall into either of those categories, I would avoid this kind of speculation. In my experience, a great deal more money is lost than made in warrants, but you never hear much talk about that side of the picture.

Q—"Is Hallcrafters a good stock to keep?" D. C.

A—"In my opinion, it is. In recent years, Hallcrafters has made an effort to broaden the scope of its operations from amateur radio equipment to a variety of specialized electronic systems. Results have been successful and earnings are on the upturn. I believe the shares offer good value and advise you to hold on to them.

Leaves Tax Form Blank to Test Government Right

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—A Wichita contractor has filed a blank income tax form with the Internal Revenue Service to test the government's right to the information.

"I want this to be a test case," contractor A. J. Porth said in a statement Thursday. "I want to be indicted before a federal grand jury."

Porth said he typed his name, address, Social Security number and occupation on the form but did not fill in any figures. He said that if the service disagreed with his tax figures, the form could be used against him in criminal action.

Punching General Has Weight on Capital Reporter

This is the eye that was punched by Edwin A. Walker, resigned major general.

Kelly explained that he was trying to ask the general whether he was going to disavow an admirer of his, George Lincoln Rockwell, American Nazi.

Kelly hadn't finished the query when—pow!—he got a right jab in his left blinker. Kelly is sporting a small mouse but said he isn't really hurting.

Kelly didn't hit back, and anyway, the general had the weight and reach advantage on him. At the request of Walker's physical Army looked up Walker's physical statistics and reported them as: 6 feet tall, 200 pounds. Kelly's figures: 5 feet 6, 155 pounds.

Unpleasant to Think of World Without It

U.N. May Fall Short in Many Ways But None Better Looms

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was 17 years ago that the United Nations was created in San Francisco. It's been a big disappointment to a lot of people. It shouldn't have been.

It's not perfect. It could get worse. It's still the only one of its kind. None better is in sight. It might improve.

And this week the Senate, despite all the griping and complaining by some members as it debated how to help the United Nations with American money, never even remotely considered pulling out.

At the start of the San Francisco conference, just as the war in Europe was ending, there was a sense of a new world being born.

Distrust Goes On
Before the conference ended anyone able to recognize reality knew it was the same old world. There were several reasons but one is enough:

The United States and Russia, allies in the war ending, were not allies in the new world coming because they didn't trust each other. They didn't then and they haven't since.

Each, to protect itself, wanted to be able to veto the other in the Security Council which, starting out, was the main U.N. organ, dominated by the big powers.

The General Assembly was secondary. There each nation had one vote and no one had a veto. In the cold war years Russia used the veto so often in the council that the veto and the council both became absurdities.

After enough of this the United States led the way in upgrading the assembly, enabling it to recommend action which Russia, before, could have vetoed in the council.

Overlooked Changes
The idealists, who thought in terms of an orderly and cooperative United Nations, overlooked something else in 1945. This was the possibility of profound changes through the addition of new nations.

At that, with a starting U.N. membership of 51, the world seemed fairly orderly. There was a limited number of nations on earth, a number which hadn't changed much in generations.

But the big European colonial powers, through impoverishment, had to disgorge themselves of their ancient colonies, which became new nations in swarms and flocked to the United Nations. Now it has 104 members.

These new nations can vote in blocs when it suits their common interests, which may not be American interests.

This in itself has caused some American frustration and disillusionment, particularly since this country pays such a big part of the U.N. freight.

It showed up vividly this week in efforts by individual senators to hamstring President Kennedy's request for approval to buy $100 million worth of a $200-million bond issue the United Nations is selling to pay expenses.

While the United Nations is not the ideal parliament of man, it is a little unpleasant to think of what the world might be without it if only because so long as people are calling one another names they're not fighting.

Its Existence Helps
On the very biggest issues—getting the United States and Russia to trust each other more than they did in 1945, stopping nuclear tests, or achieving disarmament—the United Nations has been a flop.

But it has done and is doing many things in many ways—for example, keeping peace in the Middle East and restoring it in the Congo—and so long as it exists there can be hope it will do more.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., April 5 — President Kennedy is up against two "stone walls." The first is that dividing East Berlin from West Berlin; and the second is how he can reduce unemployment.

JFK Is Conservative but Worried
Employment is increasing in practically all lines — manufacturing, building, merchandising, and other important segments; but unemployment continues to plague us, and no solution is yet in sight. Before going into further details, let me say that JFK is getting fed up with his "intellectual" advisers. He is willing to listen to them; but he has decided to make his own decisions and not leave them to anybody else—not even to Vice President Johnson.

Some Administration officials are picking up big labor's theme that the government should do something soon to decrease heavy unemployment in the U.S. There is increasing talk of considering the problem an "emergency" and calling for drastic steps by Uncle Sam. These would include advancing public works projects, creating make-work programs—possibly a modern WPA. So far, JFK has balked at grandiose proposals, mainly because they would be too costly and would throw federal budgets even farther out of whack. . . . to say nothing of the adverse impact on our already-sick balance of foreign payments. However, pressure from within and without the Administration is increasing . . . and 1962 election-year politics may force the President to send some stringent new proposals for reducing unemployment to Congress before too many more months have passed. Selling More Goods the Answer

JFK is emphasizing to both management and labor that the great need is for the United States to sell more U.S.-manufactured goods—at home and abroad—and to keep prices down. He believes this demands an entirely new brand of tariff powers—an ability to "trade." This is especially important in view of the "European Common Market." JFK believes that only as he is given dictatorial powers will he be able to meet dictators in Russia and other countries. I believe he is correct.

In addition, the United States is faced with a rising imbalance of international payments and a resumption of the gold outflow. The nation really sits astride the horns of a dilemma: If the unemployment problem is met by inflationary spending, our gold outflow may become a flood; if we try to prevent gold loss through higher interest rates and lowered spending, business may slump and unemployment soar. The President—in trying to boost foreign trade—is on the right track . . . but he will need to be a supersalesman to sell Congress on turning over to him dictatorial powers.

The Coming Steel Contract
The President is anxious to establish the principle that wages per hour will increase only as production per hour increases. (Management wants the new machinery also to get some "wages.") This may be okay for the steel corporations, but the trouble will come when all of the other unions want the same "deal" that the steel workers receive. Many corporations claim that, for various reasons, they cannot reduce costs further than they are now. All of this means that labor is tending more and more to approach a socialistic system as far as production, prices, wages, depreciation, etc., are concerned. This, of course, is the big danger.

Meanwhile, the President's Labor-Management Committee has been conferring on automation dilemmas, but no workable program for dealing with automation-created unemployment and retraining has been proposed. Nor has a plan for stemming economy-numbing strikes yet been aired. Internal union dissensions further complicate the situation. The Meany-Reuther-Hoffa triangle may not be eternal, but it will make for rough-and-tumble dislocations on the labor front during 1962, with many a headache for employers.

The telephone booth was first improvised by Thomas A. Watson, an assistant to Alexander Graham Bell. Watson piled up a mound of blankets and crouched inside while he telephoned, to stop complaints of Dr. Bell's landlady that Watson was shouting into the phone.

Some Tips About Commercials on Kitchen Cleaning

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Women viewers of television must wonder where the makers of commercials ever find homes with those incredibly dirty walls and floors and those filthy, stained sinks that turn miraculously pristine and sparkling with a sweep of a sponge or a rub with a cloth.

There are a number of techniques by which grubby walls are achieved. The easiest is to smear hands with jelly, peanut butter and other dark sticky substances and then rub them off against light walls.

If an over-all pattern of soil is needed, fine dirt is sprayed evenly on a wall treated with some grease to make sure it will stick. Soiled floors get the same dirt-and-grease treatment and sometimes the producer uses a dog with deliberately muddied feet to put the proper imprints on the vinyl.

Sink stains are tougher. One expert said that to get a good photographable stain on a porcelain sink it is necessary to leave debris like peach skins and pits, vegetable parings, tea and coffee grounds for a couple of days. Good quick results are often achieved with cold bacon grease colored with soy sauce or brown gravy.

To make one series of "stain" commercials, a producer had to dirty up several sinks with tannic acid and slide them, one after the other, before the cameras to achieve the desired effect.

"Quite frankly," said an advertising man with a scouring powder account, "a housekeeper would have to be pretty sloppy to let her house—and certainly her sink—get into the conditions we show them. But we have to make a dramatic presentation."

Glenn Could Have Given Self Needle To Overcome Pain

WASHINGTON (AP) — If astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had been hurt on his space flight, he could have given himself a pain-killing injection right through his flying suit.

Biomedical experts of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported this today during a detailed symposium on the Marine lieutenant colonel's three-orbit flight of last Feb. 20.

They disclosed that Glenn carried in his survival kit four newly developed "automatic self-injectors" stored in a small package. The injectors contained medications for pain, shock and motion sickness, and a stimulant.

One end of each injector was fitted with a red safety cap, and the other end contained the medication and needle.

Upon removal of a safety pin, the injector becomes armed.

The astronaut would have pressed the needle end of the injector into his two-ply aluminized pressure suit. The needle would have gone through the fabric and into the astronaut's skin, releasing the medication.

In tests of the technique "the resulting hole in the suit caused an insignificant suit leak," the NASA scientists reported.

Glenn did not use any of the injectors before, during or after the flight, however.

Stability Is Goal Of 9 Dairy Groups

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Nine dairy groups, claiming a total of 50,000 members, have asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to hold an emergency hearing to help bring stability to the New York-New Jersey milk marketing area.

A revised price structure is needed to help stem the "chaotic conditions" in the area, a spokesman for the groups said. He said the problems include increased supplies, lower federal price supports, mergers of proprietary milk plants and lower milk consumption.

He said that normal marketing had been disrupted and that many farmer-owned cooperatives feared they would be forced to pay less for milk than the price set by the administrator of the federal-state marketing order.

Groups that signed a telegram Thursday night to the U.S. Department of Agriculture were the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative of Syracuse, Dairyman's League Cooperative Association of New York, Mutual Federation of Independent Cooperatives of Syracuse, Inter-State Milk Producers of Philadelphia, Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency of Syracuse; United Farmers of New England; Connecticut Milk Producers; Maryland Milk Producers; and the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative.

Joins Gannett Board

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—John W. Remington, 65, has been named to succeed the late Thomas J. Hargrave as a member of the board of directors of the Gannett Co. Inc., owner of 18 newspapers and several radio and television stations.

Remington, chairman of the board of the Lincoln-Rochester Trust Co. and a former president of the American Bankers Association, is a member of the board of the Frank E. Gannett Foundation Inc., which owns the voting stock of the Gannett Co.

Hargrave, former board chairman of Eastman Kodak Co., died in February at the age of 70.

N.Y. Woman Loses Life in Crash, Fiance Is Hurt

CLARION, Pa. (AP) — A 24-year-old woman was injured fatally and her fiance and another man seriously hurt in a head-on collision of an automobile and a station wagon Thursday night.

Judy Wernsing of New Hartford, N.Y., the driver of the station wagon, died in a hospital.

Her fiance, Richard George, 22, of Hawthorn, was taken to the hospital in serious condition.

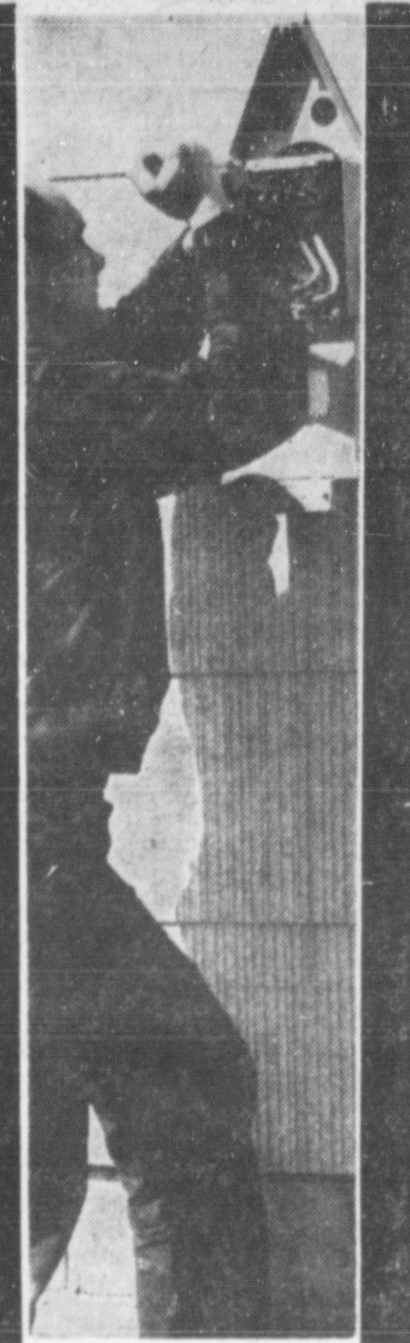

The driver of the car, Thomas W. Rankin, 50, of Clarion, was in critical condition.

George had met Miss Wernsing earlier at Warren, Pa., and they were driving to Hawthorn, where they were to be married Saturday. The accident occurred on Route 66, half a mile north of

New Bethlehem. State Police said it appeared that the station wagon's right wheels slipped onto the shoulder of the road, then the vehicle returned to the road too fast and swung into the oncoming lane, hitting Rankin's car head-on.

Delivers All-Car Average of 22.70 Miles Per Gallon

This USAC-certified mileage record was scored by regular stock cars in the 1962 Mobil Economy Run—world's greatest official test of gasoline mileage economy. All of these cars used exclusively either Mobil Premium or Mobil Regular gasoline with the highest Megatane Ratings of any leading gasolines.

Now—Mobil® gasolines have been tested in almost every make of American car. This year 46 cars were entered in the Mobil Economy Run; they traveled 2,497 miles at normal speed from Los Angeles to Detroit—across deserts, over mountains, through crowded city streets... delivered convincing records of the mileage-economy potential of Megatane-Rated Mobil!

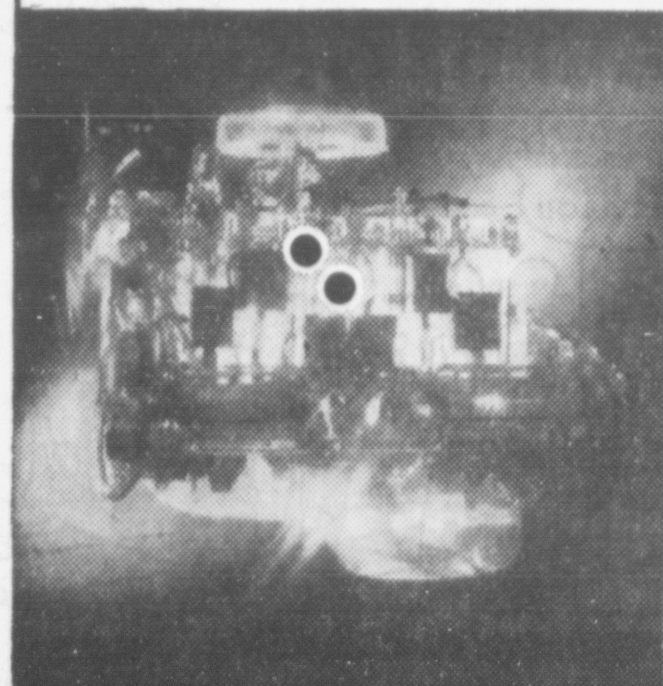

Certified Results!

This advertisement approved and the Mobil Economy Run data certified true by United States Auto Club.

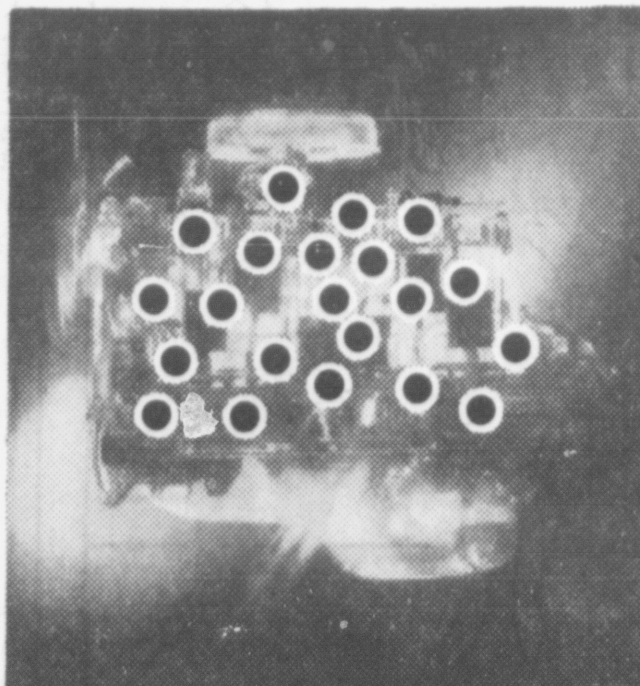

For Mileage Economy and Top Performance Get Mobil with the Highest Megatane Ratings of Any Leading Gasolines!

DON'T MAKE THE OCTANE MISTAKE!

Octane Rating measures only 2 of your motor's needs

Megatane Rating measures 21 of your motor's needs

The Higher the Megatane Rating the Better Your Motor Will Run!

Octane rating measures only 2 of the qualities your car needs in a gasoline... 2 very important qualities—both dealing with anti-knock. The result: many people make the Octane Mistake! They consider only Octane ratings when buying gasoline and overlook many other important qualities made possible by brilliant scientific advances. Qualities that can truly give you a cleaner motor, more mileage and power, longer life and fewer repair bills.

That's why Mobil's engineers measure and express gasoline quality in a rating system called the Megatane System which enables you to judge not just Octane qualities, but the total performance of your gasoline. Megatane includes Octane, of course, but goes far beyond Octane to measure not just 2, but 21, of your motor's needs.

Whether your car is designed to run on Regular or Premium—the best gasoline for your car is Megatane-Rated Mobil!

How do you know before you buy? Mobil's Megatane Rating System tells you. While no gasoline has a perfect Megatane Rating of 21, Mobil Premium at 19½ rates highest of any leading Premium. Mobil Regular at 16½ rates higher than any leading Regular gasoline. Grade for grade, Mobil gives you more of the important qualities that combine to give outstanding performance and mileage economy.

At first, this Mobil difference may not be apparent to you, but five, ten, twenty thousand miles from now your motor will know the difference... in more mileage, in less loss of power, and in longer prime of life.

So, save your motor as well as your pocketbook! Get Mobil with the highest Megatane Ratings of any leading gasolines!

Governor Hails Aid for Gotham, Wagner Disagrees

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller says the record $555,668,000 that New York City will receive in state aid for the 1962-63 fiscal year should "shatter the political myth" that the city is being shortchanged.

The governor also claims that "never in the history of this state has any Legislature—Democratic or otherwise—done so much for the city as has been done this year."

He made the latter declaration Thursday during a tour of Long Island's damaged shore line. He followed up here Thursday night with a 3,500-word statement listing figures which he said "expose the political hypocrisy of those who even deny that we act in good faith."

Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner quickly hit back with a statement accusing the Republican governor of "figure-fumbling...calculated to mislead and deceive."

Wagner, who has been hurling "shortchange" charges at Rockefeller and the Republican-controlled Legislature, said the pivotal issue is not the dollar amount of aid to the city, but rather the percentage of the total of state aid that the city receives.

"We have done worse this year than ever before," Wagner said. "With the figures we have been able to call from Albany, the percentage of state aid New York City has received has dropped to 37.3. That is why we continue to assert that the people of New York City are being shortchanged by the state."

Turkish Student Can Remain in U. S. for Good

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 27-year-old Turkish nuclear science and engineering student, who was due for mandatory departure from the United States in June, has been granted permission by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to remain in the country permanently.

Under the Immigration Service's ruling, made by the regional office in Burlington, Vt., and announced by the district office here Thursday, David Ebeoglu can apply for American citizenship in three years.

"It shows I was right in keeping my faith in America," said Ebeoglu, who earlier in the week was offered a position on the staff of a Canadian university. "Now I can make a free choice...Now I am free to consider many choices."

Silent on Position

He declined, however, to say whether he would seek a position in the United States.

Ebeoglu, who is working for his doctorate in June at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, would have had to leave the country under a provision which requires students to return home for at least two years after completion of their studies in the United States.

The Immigration Service, which earlier had upheld the provision, reversed its decision in acting on an appeal by Ebeoglu. The service said only that a U.S. State Department recommendation and a finding that Ebeoglu would face an undue hardship if forced to return to Turkey prompted the new ruling.

His Statement

Concerning the Immigration Service's reversal of its earlier ruling, Ebeoglu said:

"America is a government of laws. But it is a government of enough flexibility to make exceptions when they are in the best interests of the people. As long as there is a free press to act as a watchdog and point out any unfairness, this will be the case."

Ebeoglu is married to an American girl, the former Sheryl Smith of Glens Falls who is expecting their first child.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The transportation industry, particularly the older sections, will applaud President Kennedy's blast at one of their chief handicaps. That is the outmoded regulations under which they are forced to operate.

But the competitive fight among the carriers probably will only be increased when and if Congress gets around to rewriting the operating rules, taxes and rates and to granting new forms of subsidies suggested as helping to solve at least the short term problems.

Commission in Middle

The regulatory commissions are in the center of the fight. And the oldest of them, the Interstate Commerce Commission, is observing its 75th birthday this week.

The railroads, chief charge of the ICC, and the airlines, under the wing of the Civil Aeronautics Board, call the commission rules out of date. They also complain that the regulations handicap them in competition with other carriers, notably the trucks and buses, the pipelines and the barge lines.

The latter think their competitors are seeking, and even finding, ways to get the better of the fight. And all hands can be counted upon to contest any congressional moves they think will help any rival at their expense. The battle will be fought over the broad regulation changes and right down to the local applications.

Agree With Problem

But most observers will agree with the fundamental problem the President outlined this way: "The regulatory commissions are required to make thousands of detailed decisions based on out-of-date standards. The management of the various modes of transportation is subjected to excessive, cumbersome and time-consuming regulatory supervision that shackles and distorts managerial initiative. Some parts of the transportation industry are restrained unnecessarily; others are promoted or taxed unevenly and inconsistently."

On the competitive level, the President notes that some carriers are subject to rate regulation in fields where other competing carriers aren't. He points out that sometimes restraints on cost cutting actually lead to cost-increasing rivalry. And he notes that the competitors complain that the public provides facilities for some carriers and not others, and that in other cases some bear a large part of the cost of public facilities and others bear little or none.

The rivalry is so keen today because the carriers have been in trouble. The Eastern railroads in particular have had operating losses. Many of the airlines have had bumpy financial flying. Some truck lines felt the recession. They particularly resent railroad piggy-back carrying of trucks or trailers.

Moving Maple

World's most widely traveled item of air cargo is a gavel wielded by presidents of an international air transport association. Carved from a block of Canadian maple, it has been used in annual meetings on six continents and has been shipped a total of 140,000 miles.

Paris Votes for Colorful Spring

NEA Color Sketches

Pierre Cardin features smocking in his spring collection. At left it is seen in the upstanding collar on this banana wool afternoon coat of great fullness. Jean Desses created the cerise chiffon short dinner dress at right for a royal dinner party. The fabric is entirely worked into miniature box pleats which contrast with the plain top and its deep "Chinese lantern" flounce.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

With spring in our midst, anyone having a little house with a bit of earth for a garden and a tree would now enjoy reading Elizabeth Burroughs Kelley's book on her grandfather, "John Burroughs, Naturalist" published by the Exposition Press of New York.

I just started it and am delighted with the conversational tone Mrs. Kelley uses, as though you were visiting with her in her garden in West Park and she was telling you about her grandfather's life, the famous place, Riverby, and Slabside.

Folks might know only of John Burroughs as a writer, but he made a living as a school teacher in his day right in Tongore where he met Ursula North from Olive. Ursula came from a big farmhouse in the mountains. There were ten children in her family and it was a busy household and most of the things they wore or used were made right on the farm as in pioneer days. She had seen some real city life though when she was with her husband in Washington, D. C. but now she was back in the country again.

You might remember John Burroughs with a white beard, but at one time he was truly a white collar blue-suiter for he had been appointed receiver for a bank in Middletown. He was also a special National Bank Examiner for locations along the Hudson. Thus he found his dream place, half way between Albany and New York, the nine-acre Deyo farm on our side of the Hudson. He bought it around 1872, although Ursula felt he paid too much, some $6,000, but it turned out to be a delight to national figures and millionaires to visit, and thousands of others.

It takes courage to change one's way of life so entirely, but he never stood still. In the beginning of the book John Burroughs had been sent to London and Paris on government business, and there made friends with leading British writers and his work as a writer was becoming popular over there. His own family were in Roxbury, but their interests seemed to be only in their homesteads.

Even when John Burroughs had his white-collar job in Washington he raised a vegetable garden in his yard, just about where the Senate office building now stands, and Mrs. Kelley, his granddaughter writes, that passers-by one the street used to stare at it over the fence. Little did they know then, that they would be forgotten but that they were looking at John Burroughs garden.

Those who have a view of the Hudson will enjoy reading how he fell in love with it, and his orchards of fruit trees, berry and Concord grapes, and his woods where he had a choice of stone for his famous seven-cornered house. He drew up his own plans, and even made a pasteboard model of it. He collected the quaint rocks, but the stone-work was done by workmen who received about 20 cents an hour, and although the stone cost him nothing their work ran into about $1,500. The barrels of lime were brought by Hudson River steamboats for the mortar.

Later he was to learn, that he had made mistakes in his house as everyone does, who makes the one house by his own plans. She tells all about it. She writes about our seasons, our hardships and delights as we come into spring after a hard winter. This book can be had from the Kingston City Library.

Weak in History

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — A North Carolina history professor says today's high school graduates are "weak in the broad perspectives of history and in the use of the English language."

Dr. Frank W. Ryan, association professor of history at the University of North Carolina, told a newsman that students fresh from American high schools "do not have much background in history."

Ithaca Is Asked To Pay $246.23 As Travel Fare

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—The City of Ithaca was faced today with a claim for $246.23 from a South Carolina couple who say it cost them that amount to travel here to check on a $2 parking ticket. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cooper of Meggett, S.C., contend they did not have a car registered in New York State this year and that they were not in the state Feb. 2, when the overtime parking ticket was issued here.

After a registration check with the State Motor Vehicle Department in Albany, the ticket was forwarded to Cooper's wife, Alice.

A car registered in 1962 to an Elmira man has the same license number as a car registered last year in the name of an Alice and Norman Cooper of Lowman, an Elmira suburb, the Motor Vehicle Department said.

The Coopers formerly lived at Lowman. The Coopers' attorney, Judson Hoover of Elmira, said the couple were alarmed by a reminder that a summons or warrant might be issued unless the fine was paid promptly. He said he would sue in State Supreme Court if the city did not pay the claim.

City Clerk George Blean said the claim would be turned over to the city's insurance agent.

Woman 104 Today

FAIRFIELD, N.Y. (AP)—Mrs. Louise Miller, observing her 104th birthday today, still climbs stairs by herself and curls her hair every night.

Mrs. Miller recalls that, when she and her husband worked in

Her husband, Edward, died in 1937.

Mrs. Miller now lives in a rest home in this Herkimer County village.

Interfaith Center Doing Wonders To Help Blind

By RICHARD H. PYLE

DETROIT (AP) — If you were one of the 7,000 blind persons in this metropolitan area it's a 10 to 1 bet you wouldn't have a job.

The chances are even more remote that you would be trained to get around with a cane or a dog.

You would be living in the state that ranks 50th in the use of federal funds for aid to the blind, and in the only U.S. city with more than 600,000 population that has no voluntary service to the blind.

But you might be finding new hope through a new agency called the Blind Service Center, a product of the united efforts of the city's three major faiths—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish.

In existence only since January, the Blind Service Center has built up a working fund of $6,000 from donations and is commencing a multipronged effort to help the sightless.

Fulfills Aching Need

To the Rev. Raymond C. Ellis, a young Catholic priest who heads the Detroit archdiocese's work with the blind, deaf and mentally retarded, the interfaith center is fulfilling an aching need.

The task of the center is to provide practical assistance to the blind — counseling, employment and help in emergencies — but without what Father Ellis calls "the cold professionalism" of the government social agency.

Operating on a shoestring and staffed by volunteers since its inception, the center, through funds solicited by an auxiliary, is just now becoming strong enough to cut some patterns for its purpose.

Expert to Join Move

It soon will have a full-time social worker, an expert in rehabilitation of the blind, to run things. It will set up an employment agency and aid referral service, and expand its activities to cover, in addition to the blind, the estimated 150 deaf-blind persons in the Detroit area.

Already at work is a telephone counseling service. By dialing a number, a blind person can listen to recorded information on a wide range of subjects: where the best bargains are, what blind social groups are meeting, or how to make chicken cacciatore.

V-8 BUICK SPECIAL RACKS UP 23.68 M.P.G.

Gives Class D 6's a scare in Mobil Economy Run

(Class D—luxury compact cars with automatic transmission)

"BUICK SPECIAL ALUMINUM V-8 BEATS
ALL COMPACTS AND FULL SIZE V-8's"

Can a V-8 give straight 6's a run for the money? Yes, indeed—if it's the aluminum V-8 in a Buick Special. In this year's Mobil Economy Run, a finely tuned Buick Special finished just an eyelash behind the two 6's among luxury compacts. The winning mileage in Class D was 24.85 mpg. The Special V-8 racked up a whopping 23.68 with regular gas. Close? You bet.

This figure means that now you can buy a V-8 for economy, too, and get fast stepping zip as a bonus with Buick. In the Mobil run all cars are driven by trained drivers so you can't normally expect as good mileage. BUT—whether you are a pro or not, the V-8 Special's combination of high performance and economy is sure to prove a mighty pleasant surprise.

Marcel Grandjany, Famous Harpist, Will Be Soloist With Hudson Valley Philharmonic

MARCEL GRANDJANY

Marcel Grandjany, master harpist, will be the guest soloist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, at a concert to be held at Poughkeepsie High School on April 8 at 8:30 p. m., and to be repeated in Kingston on April 9.

Grandjany and Claude Montaux, flutist and conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, will be the solo artists for the performance of the Mozart Concerto for flute and harp. Sterling Hunkins, principal cellist of the orchestra, will conduct this work.

Also included in the program for the concert are: Debussy Sacred and Profane Dances, and the Symphony No. 5 of Tchaikovsky.

Since 1938, Marcel Grandjany has been head of the harp department at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. Since 1943 he has also been on the staff at the Conservatoire de Musique et l'Art Dramatique in Montreal, Canada.

Grandjany began the study of the harp at the age of eight. A student of the famous harpist Henriette Renie, he won the coveted first prize of the Paris Conservatoire before his fourteenth birthday. At 17 he made his debut with the Concerts Lamoureux Orchestra, and during the same year he gave his first harp recital, winning immediate acclaim.

At the Sacred Heart Basilica in Paris, Grandjany was organist and choir master for several years, but returned to the study of the harp and decided to concentrate exclusively on this instrument and to eliminate all limitations of its scope. "To me," he states, "the possibility of color, dynamics, effects and scope of literature are endless with this beloved instrument of mine; it represents the entire orchestra."

Grandjany has written songs, piano selections and a considerable amount of music for the harp. In France, England, Canada and in America his recitals have established him as the foremost harpist of our day.

Nearly 35 million gas ranges now are in daily service in the United States.

Kurt J. Matzdorf, Noted Silversmith Will Speak Here

A program on silversmithing in the United States, its background, will be discussed by Kurt J. Matzdorf, assistant professor of art education at State University College, New Paltz, at a meeting of the Women's Club of the YWCA.

Mr. Matzdorf, who has several of his works on display now at the Kingston Art Gallery, Route 9W, is known for his exquisite workmanship. In addition to his talk, he will show films on the subject and exhibit several pieces of his work.

The program will be given at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue,

Kingston, on Thursday, April 12. There will be a business session at 2:15 p. m., and the program will begin at 3 p. m. This is an open meeting and friends of the YWCA are cordially invited.

Mr. Matzdorf's hand-wrought silver was exhibited in several places. A silver water pitcher with 14-carat gold insets in the handle won a blue ribbon at the New York State Craft Fair in Ithaca in 1958.

Mr. Matzdorf has also done several pieces of work for Temple Emanuel on Albany Avenue, this city. These include the art doors of embossed bronze with enamel; seen branch bronze candle sticks; the eternal light in bronze and silver; a flower holder in bronze and silver; and a Kiddush cup of silver and gold.

He also designed and made a silver water cruet with a crown and wave motif which St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in New Paltz presented to the Church of Christ the Kingston in Stone Ridge.

Matzdorf, born in Germany, studied sculpture at London University. He came to this country in 1949 because he thought there were more opportunities for a young artist in this country than in England. He and Miss Alice Litt, who was graduated from Vassar College in 1945, met in New York City and were married in 1950. He began working in the University of Iowa for a master of fine arts degree in sculpture and halfway through discovered his own preference for silversmithing. Mr. Matzdorf has also taught at the University of Ohio and Kansas State College. He joined the staff in New Paltz in 1957. As assistant professor of art education, he teaches silversmithing, jewelry making and basic three-dimensional design, sculpture.

Who Is to Order Fluoridation?

To the people of Kingston, a city renowned for its pure water and pure water system, a system which has been guarded for many years by the local Water Boards, past and present and the Commissioner of Health of New York State. Have they ever failed you? No. It is their DUTY toward you, men, women and children alike—no discrimination—those who are well, those who are ill, the young as well as the aged.

As American Citizens who pay federal, state and local taxes you have the right to demand an investigation of the so called "Fluoridators" who are using such words as expeditious, inevitable, medically safe, experimental as yet.

Stand by your Constitutional Rights, for they are yours until you surrender them! The "Pledge of Allegiance" is well-known and recited daily over our Free Land, and it ends with these words: "With Liberty and Justice for All."

The practice of Medicine belongs to the Medical Profession. We have many outstanding doctors, both medical and surgical who work daily for the betterment of our health. Fluoridation as far as I can see is a project in the Dentistry line. Some of our dentists in Kingston as well as dentists outside of Kingston along with the Committee for Fluoridation are using every means to push this controversial issue through, as though all the people are demanding it. THIS IS A LIE! All the people cannot come under the title P.T.A. Many are resenting it and will make this resentment known when they meet to form a Citizen's Committee AGAINST Fluoridation. MARY CASHARA, R.N. —adv.

Oscar Show Set Monday on ABC

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor won't be able to make it, but most of the other invited guests are expected to attend the 33rd Academy Awards Monday night.

Miss Taylor has been reported making a movie or something in Europe and hence will be unable to hand out the best-actor award, as is customary for the previous year's best-actress winner. Her place will be taken by another former winner, Joan Crawford ("Mildred Pierce," 1945).

Most in Audience
Burt Lancaster, who won last year for "Elmer Gantry," will be on hand to present the best-actress Oscar. Most of the nominees are expected to be in the audience at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Well, almost. Jackie Gleason, nominated for best supporting actor in "The Hustler," won't fly and declined to make the journey from the East by rail. Running mate George C. Scott, same category, same picture, pulls a no-show for a different reason. He is the chap who tried to withdraw from the race on the charge it was too commercial.

Commercial or no, Hollywood's big show takes off at 10:30 p.m. (EST) over the ABC television network. The man in charge of festivities for the third-year is award-heavy Arthur Freed ("An American in Paris," "Gigi").

Fastest Show Possible
"The show will be the same as in previous years—maybe a little faster," the producer said. "After all, there's not much you can do with it."

"The Academy Awards is a news event, like the World Series. The main thing people want to see is: Who's going to win. The rest is unimportant."

"We may be 10 or 15 minutes shorter than last year's two hours. I had Danny Kaye do a number, and Vic Damone sang an Oscar Hammerstein medley, but we won't have anything special this time. There's no point in trying to make a vaudeville show out of it."

To Use Old Clips
"We're also going back to the old system of using film clips. We'll show scenes from the five nominated pictures, also from the nominees' for special effects—'Absent-Minded Professor' and 'Guns of Navarone.' That's because the general public doesn't know what special effects are. We can't use clips for the performances; 20 would be too many."

"The nominated songs will be sung, and the costume designs will be shown. The rest of the show will be awards."

Freed said he advocated cutting down the number of awards, but it is a constant battle against those who want more. At least 28 Oscars and five honorary awards will be dealt out Monday night.

EVIL SPIRITS: This custom came about from the ancient Romans and is supposed to bring good luck. It was believed that evil spirits stood guard at the threshold of the new bride, ready to trip her as she entered. In order to circumvent this, the groom would carry his bride past the evil spirits.

Columbia Pushes Concrete

The Columbia County Board of Supervisors at a special meeting Tuesday night passed a resolution petitioning the Taconic Parkway Commission to use cement in all parkway construction. This was done to stimulate the production of cement in the area, where large cement mills operate.

This action, geared to back up the cement industry in the county, came as a contract for paving 11.95 miles of the Taconic Parkway from Martindale, the present northern terminus, to Route 203 is about to be let. Bids for the paving of the parkway, estimated at approximately $4.7 million, will be opened April 12.

Mass for Cuba POWs

NEW YORK (AP)—A mass today has been set by Francis Cardinal Spellman for 1,179 men tried in Cuba this week for their part in last year's abortive invasion.

In a statement announcing the Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, the cardinal described the invaders as "brave and patriotic young men" who tried "to restore liberty to their homeland, tragic prey of godless communism."

"I ask the prayers of the people of the archdiocese of New York that the lives of the valiant young men may be spared," he said.

SHOKAN NEWS

SHOKAN—Frank Schwall of the High Falls area was a caller in the village center recently.

Mrs. Valmar Christiansen is again greeting local friends following a hospital sojourn in Kingston.

Irving Guttridge, Downsville man who resided here as a boy, was elected president of the Delaware Council of Churches at its annual meeting, March 23, at Hamden. Guttridge, a Methodist, is connected with the New York City Board of Water Supply there. The city already has begun the work of relocating some of the roads in the vicinity of its new Cannonsville Reservoir.

John Adsit, World War II veteran and Olive Fire Department official, has employment with the contractors for the new aggregate plant along the lower Rondout Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stanbridge, Margaretville, were recent callers at the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William Beemer.

Roger Cosmen of North Arlington Avenue, East Orange, N. J., writes that he and his family hope soon to resume their seasonal weekend visits to Mt. Tremper.

Birthdays coming along soon include that of Russell Wendt, eldest of the three sons of Herman and Margaret Wendt, who will be 21 on April 10. Also having a birthday Tuesday is Max Holzer whose home since 1946 has been the one time Edward Davis farmhouse.

Michael Davis, Ashokan youth, reportedly has joined the National Guard for a six month training period, reporting at Fort Knox, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mercier and son, Peter, recently were weekend callers at the Ward Shaver and Bruce Armstrong homes in Margaretville.

Cyrus Dingman, 55, of the Troy Record editorial staff, who died March 21 formerly was well known in Shokan. His wife was Daisy Cudney, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Cudney of the Ashokan mountain road.

A topic of general conversation in the Olive-Rochester town line area last month was the sleeping bear story. Seems a hunter while tracking a bobcat which he shot, came upon a hillside cave in the opening of which reposed a sizeable black bear, still snoozing peacefully at the latter end of his winter siesta. Next day, several residents of South Olive and nearby Leibhardt went to the cave and some of the women in the party, including Mrs. Cecil Gray and her daughter, Mrs. Russell Kortright, took snapshots of the sleeping bruin which turned out very good. Later, however, when a conservation department man visited the scene to tag the animal, there was no one at home.

Evelyn C. Rothwell, former New York City woman who has friends in the reservoir country is now making her home at Riverside, near Providence, R. I. Mrs. Rothwell as a young woman spent her summers at Binnewater.

Pratt Boice, Lake Katrine man who was born and brought up at West Shokan, and his wife reportedly are on a trip to the Florida east coast.

The state road section men had a repair job following a mishap early Saturday morning when a big milk tanker, west bound, ran off the pavement across from the telephone building on Route 28 in the village center. The cab went right on down the 10-foot steep bank into the field below, remaining upright, while the trailer was tilted perilously on the slope. But little difficulty was had in getting both back on the road, what with a wrecker pulling a steel cable and the tank driver backing his cab up. Later, Foreman Haver and his men replaced the several ruined concrete posts, this being their second job at that point within a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turck have moved from Westkill, Greene County, to Kingston where Turck has employment.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Boice of Kingston are sojourning for a while in North Carolina. Boice is a native of the Watson Hollow Road neighborhood, and his wife, the former Dorothy Hyde, resided here as a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Johnson, Arkville couple who have relatives in Olive and Kingston, have returned home after spending several weeks on the Florida east coast. They were accompanied by Mr. Johnson's mother, Anna Johnson, who reportedly has rented her Roxbury home to John Buck of Kingston and will live at Arkville.

The Leonard Ruckerts are expected to return home later in the month after having been at their Hollywood, Fla., home all winter.

John Wojciechowski is again at the Terrace Motel following a trip to St. Petersburg, Fla. Sixty per cent of all office buildings in the United States have central or individual room air conditioning.

Mysterious Death Under Police Probe

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y. (AP)—Police are probing the mysterious death of a wealthy businessman killed at close range by a bullet wound in the temple. No weapon was found.

The body of Maitland Brenhouse, 50, was discovered Thursday slumped in an easy chair in the second floor den of his home. A nearby television set was blaring. Officials said he could have been dead for as long as 18 hours.

Police said Brenhouse and his wife, 45, although legally separated for the last eight years, occupied adjacent houses and were on the best of terms. The couple have four children, ranging in age from 9 to 20.

Brenhouse often took his meals with his wife and children. Mrs. Brenhouse said she last saw him about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The ancient Chinese attributed medicinal powers to bananas.

At New Paltz College

Dr. Campbell to Head Phys Ed Department

The appointment of Dr. Loren D. Campbell, Professor of Education, to the position of head of the Department of Physical Education and Athletics at the State University College, New Paltz was announced this week by Dr. William J. Haggerty, President of the College.

This is the first time that the College has had a separate Department of Physical Education and Athletics, and President Haggerty also announced that an athletic council—composed of Dr. Campbell, three members of the faculty, and three students—would soon be appointed.

It was pointed out by President Haggerty that the need for a separate department of physical education and athletics is due to the growth of the College during the past few years and the anticipated increase in enrollment in the future.

Another consideration, he said, is the new Health and Physical Education Building which is expected to be under construction within the next few weeks.

Dr. Campbell is in his 38th year of coaching, 30 years of which have been at New Paltz. He joined the New Paltz College staff in 1932, and for 24 years was the only coach at the College. He started coaching football at New Paltz in 1932 and had teams until 1936, and he also coached the first New Paltz College teams in track, cross country, baseball and intramural sports.

In addition to his activities as coach, Dr. Campbell has also become well known nationally, as well as in the State of New York, for his work in the field of driver education.

He was graduated from Western Michigan University with a BS Degree and received his MA and Ed.D. Degrees from New York University. He began coaching and directing health and physical education activities at the Ironwood Michigan High School, a position he held for two years. During the next two years he held a similar position at Barker, New York, and he spent the next four years as director of physical education and athletic coach in the public school of Croton-on-Hudson, New York, before coming to New Paltz.

Members of the Lowlands Ranch Club met Sunday night and made plans for the annual Joe Lamphere Memorial Horse Show, scheduled on June 3.

Joe Fay, chairman of the house and grounds committee, reported a great deal of progress on the two in the past month.

A feature of the horse show will be the cloverleaf barrel race. A meeting of the show committee will take place on April 15 at the home of president Ernie Rowe.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held on Sunday, May 6, at the club house at 2 p. m.

Cash Remains The Same Even With Big Average

Associated Press Sports Writer
LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The American League batting crown—his first flirtation with fame—hasn't changed Norm Cash.

The Detroit Tigers' first baseman, who hit .361 in 1961, is still a batting cage wit.

He treats baseball as a game—a serious game, but still a game. Life is full of fun, especially in the exhibition games when the pressure of the pennant race is off.

A few weeks ago Cash backed away from a pitch and looped the ball softly along the left field foul line.

It was a sure double. But Cash was laughing so hard at his meek pose he had to slow down and was thrown out at second.

Cash was one of the most questioned and most photographed players in Florida this spring.

"Can you bat .361 again?" "My hat sits," said Cash in his Texas drawl.

"I can't say I'll hit .361 again. But I feel certain I can be a .300 hitter."

Cash's salary was more than doubled for winning the batting title. He'll receive $29,000 this season.

Batting has become natural for Cash. Fielding remains a chore. Cash went to spring training last year with Manager Bob Scheffing's promise first base was his—as long as he could hold the job. Coach Phil Cavarretta, once a fine fielding first baseman and a batting champion himself, was Cash's personal tutor.

Cavarretta spent hours banging grounders at Cash—and he learned to be a reliable fielder, although he still is unsure at times.

He circled under an infield pop in an intrasquad game one day. "I've got it," yelled Cash. "I hope."

He caught the ball.

BIGGEST CURVE IN THE ROAD

Player Leads Masters With a Brilliant 67

By MERCER BAILEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Maybe the Masters is the magic medicine that can cure Gary Player of a double-dose of homesickness.

The little South African got off to a tremendous start Thursday in defense of his crown. Returning to the putting style that brought him victory over this taxing, 6,900-yard Augusta National Course last year, he shot a brilliant 5-under-par 67 and grabbed a two-stroke lead.

But Player is eager to spend more time in Johannesburg with his wife and two children "and another one on the way."

The personable 26-year-old hasn't won a tournament since his triumph here last year.

Despite his status as defending champion, Player was almost overlooked in pre-tournament talk when the favorites were mentioned. After all, his putting had been awfully sour—and no Masters winner thus far has been able to repeat the next year.

Boros Trails
In second place behind Player after a rain-plagued first round was brawny Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., the 1952 U.S. Open champion. He had a 69.

Arnold Palmer, the Pennsylvania now of Miami, and the most feared man in golf today, matched Player's 33 on the back nine and closed with a 70, good for a four-way tie for third spot. Player and Palmer both birdied the 18th, to the delight of a tremendous gallery.

Deadlocked with Palmer at 70 were Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y., another 33 shooter on the back nine; and two Florida dark horses, Dave Ragan of Sun City and Gardner Dickinson of Tequesta.

Gene Littler of Rancho Bernardo, Calif., the current U.S. Open king, headed a quartet of 71 shooters. The others were Don January of Dallas, Billy Maxwell of Las Vegas, Nev., Bob Rosburg of Portland, Ore., and George Bayer of Miami.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., still a gallery favorite although no longer a major threat, was among 10 players who matched par with 72s.

Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, still the master from tee to green, had more of the putter trouble that has dogged him in recent years and wound up with 78. He three-putted four greens.

Jack Nicklaus, playing in the Masters for the first time as a pro, was seven strokes off the pace with a 38-36-74.

Three Year Olds Featured In Big Races This Saturday

By JOHN CHANDLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
With the Kentucky Derby only four weeks distant, races for 3-year-olds will be featured Saturday at three of the nation's major race courses. The $50,000-added Gotham Stakes at Aqueduct is the main event for the colts with derby ambitions.

Eight may go in the one-mile Gotham, with Verne Winchell's Donut King, George D. Widener's Jaipur and Robert Lehman's Prego heading the field. Jaipur isn't in the Derby, but he'll be ready for the other triple crown events, the Preakness and Belmont. The Gotham is his first 1962 start.

At least five sophomores eligible for the gallop at Louisville May 5 will be seen in the $15,000 California Derby Trial at Tanforan. Several others are due for action in the $25,000 Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park.

Natural Rivalry
The Donut King-Jaipur meeting, along with Prego and others at Aqueduct, is a natural. Jaipur loomed as the East's top candidate for 2-year-old honors until Donut King nosed him out Oct. 14 in the $206,000 Champagne Stakes at Aqueduct.

Prego was awarded Hialeah's $136,200 Flamingo last month when he finished second and Townsend Martin's Sunrise County, home first, was disqualified.

Shawangunk Country Club at Ellenville has announced the signing of Matt Matteson, veteran PGA member, as Pro-Manager for the 1962 season.

Matteson and his wife will supervise operation of the refurbished cocktail lounge and dining room at the Shawangunk club.

A long time member of the Professional Golfers Association, Matteson is a Class A member of the Philadelphia Section PGA. He served 12 years as secretary-treasurer of the Illinois PGA and was a delegate to the National PGA convention 15 years.

Matteson started the Chicago Tribune Golf School System and served for 12 years under Arch Ward in the world's largest free golf school system.

He was head pro at Ridge Country Club, Chicago, for 22 summers and head pro at Gulf Hills Country Club, Biloxie, Miss., for 22 winters. He also operated the indoor golf school at Laurels in the Pines Hotel, Lakewood, N. J., for ten winters, and owned and operated the golf range and restaurant at Pleasantville, N. J., for 12 seasons.

Holds Several Records
A renowned player in his youth, Matteson still holds the course record of 64 at Ridge Country Club, Chicago; the course record of 63 at Gulf Hills, Biloxi, where he also set the nine-hole record of 28. He has seven holes-in-one to his credit.

Matteson has devoted almost his entire professional career to the teaching of golf, golf clinics, junior promotions, etc.

Mrs. Matteson operated their restaurant in Pleasantville, N. J., and for five winters was a dining room hostess in the Laurels in the Pines.

Shawangunk president, Robert V. Stapleton, was highly elated over the acquisition of Mr. and Mrs. Matteson. He said the Shawangunk course had wintered beautifully and was in superb condition. The interior of the clubhouse has undergone further refurbishing since the 1961 season.

"We feel that we have at long last gotten our clubhouse off the ground," said Stapleton. "We are looking forward to the biggest and most pleasant year in the history of our club."

Wallkill to Open Season April 13

Wallkill Central will open its baseball season on April 13 at Marlboro. The Blue Devils will be coached by athletic director Vince DeAngelis and the schedule shows 14 games, all in the Ulster County League.

Returning from last season are George Drutman, Paul Gaffney, Larry Martinez, Dennis Mullen, Bob Pink, Pete Sowa and Al White. Newcomers are Jim Doolittle, Doug Edebohis, Jack Kiddoff, Richie Mullen, Dave Meyers, Larry Portuondo, and Don White and Ed Mooney.

Orange Coach Pleased With Team's Condition
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Coach Ben Schwartzwalder says he is pleased with the physical condition of the 78 candidates who reported for the start of Syracuse University's spring football practice.

The Orange, which began drills Thursday, must undergo a major rebuilding after the loss of Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis and seven other starters from the team that won seven and lost three in the regular season last year.

Ends John Mackey and Walt Sweeney and guard Dave Meggsey were the only starters from the 1961 team to report Thursday. Syracuse will hold its annual varsity—alumni game May 5. Schwartzwalder hopes to hold 20 practice sessions before then.

Major League Roundup

Stafford Goes the Distance As Yankees Beat Phils, 2-1

FORT MYERS, Fla. — (NEA) — A slimmed down Danny Murtaugh of the Pittsburgh Pirates explains the pound droppage very simply: "I haven't changed my diet. Just finished first one year (1960) and sixth the next. . . . Vern Law comes up with a sore arm and I lose weight." . . .

Also witting away is skipper Birdie Tebbetts of Milwaukee. . . . from 238 to 216 since he took command last September. . . . Could the managers be in better shape than the players? "Nah," Birdie shook his head. "With the pension plan and big bonuses, you never have to worry about the kids. There's too much money at stake not to be in shape." . . .

"You can't be a 100 per cent ballplayer and pitch in the major leagues," Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers started out. "The 100 per cent guy is the wild man. He's trying too hard. I found that out last spring. I let up a little bit and found I could get the ball over and still get the man out." . . . Koufax is one of the few pitchers in the majors who doesn't include a slider in his arsenal. . . . "Control," added the handsome Brooklyn lad, "is a matter of temperament and confidence." . . .

"I'll never hit 60 home runs as long as I'm playing in Forbes Field," admitted Dick Stuart of the Pirates. "It costs me 15 homers a season. I hit 16 there last year, and that's the most since they took down Greenberg Gardens." . . .

In 1960, Pete Whisenant was sitting in a Detroit hotel, waiting to pick up the Washington club, to whom he'd been traded. . . . Having spent all his major league career in the National League, he didn't know where to while away his time. . . . He struck up a conversation with a New York advertising man, explained the problem of being a strange player in a strange town and thus was born the idea of Baseball's Baedeker . . . just out, with Whisenant, a Cincinnati coach, as co-publisher.

Tommy Harper, brilliant young infielder who might make the Reds forget that Gene Freese broke his leg, is out of the same Oakland, Calif., area that produced Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson (plus basketball's Bill Russell) . . . except that he didn't go to McElmonds High. . . . He attended Santa Rosa Junior College and San Francisco State as a T-quarterback. . . .

The most surprising recruit of the spring also abandoned T-quarterbacking—Bernie Allen of Purdue and the Minnesota Twins, who has the inside shot at second base . . . yet Bernie didn't expect to play baseball this year and got married on the eve of training camp, expecting the Army to grab him. . . . but he was deferred in a six months program and has been the phenomenon of the Orlando camp, despite a mediocre .242 debut at Charlotte, N. C., last summer. . . .

"When I thought it over," mused Bernie, "I didn't feel I did so bad. There's a big adjustment from college to pro ball."

An ex-Kansas City hireling tells this one about Athletic biggie Charley Finley, who seems to believe he can run baseball like his insurance business. Last summer Finley got the idea that Jim Archer, in the bullpen, would make a good starter, and veteran Joe Nuxhall would make a good reliever. . . . He ordered Manager Joe Gordon to make the switch. . . . "But Nuxhall has always been a starter," argued Joe. "He won't like it. He won't be happy." . . . "Don't worry," Finley shrugged him off. "I'll talk to him." . . . Nuxhall is now with Baltimore. . . .

Pitcher Don Lee of the Minnesota Twins is the son of Thornton Lee, the old American League southpaw. . . . Don throws and bats right-handed, but playing softball at home in Arizona, as a first baseman, he used to throw and bat left-handed.

Between you'n me, the kids are getting so tall that you get the impression you're walking into a basketball camp every time you step on a baseball field. . . .

Strong, stings and successful—that's Bill Stafford, an instant sensation for the New York Yankees last year who has been the world champions' most effective pitcher during the exhibition baseball season.

Making his last pre-season start, the right-hander, 23, became the first member of the Yankees' staff to go the distance as he spaced 11 hits—all singles—in a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia at Fort Lauderdale Thursday.

Stafford now has worked 41 innings—most on the club—posted an incredible 1.69 earned run average and, almost as amazing in the day of the home run, has not been touched for a circuit shot during the entire exhibition grind.

Stafford fashioned a 14-9 record during the 1961 campaign, his first full season in the majors, and compiled the second lowest ERA in the league at 2.68.

The triumph gave the world champs a 17-8 record, leaving them in a tie with St. Louis for the best exhibition record. The Cardinals nipped Detroit 6-5 at Lakeland, handing the Tigers their eighth consecutive loss.

In other games, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-2 at Miami, San Francisco belted Milwaukee 8-2 at Phoenix, the Chicago White Sox shut out Cincinnati 5-0 at Savannah, the Los Angeles Dodgers clipped Cleveland 4-2 at Tucson, Houston defeated Los Angeles Angels 3-2 at San Antonio and Kansas City edged the New York Mets 6-5 at St. Petersburg.

Two Double Plays

The Yankees scored their runs as Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh came across while the Phils were completing double plays. The Cards went ahead on Stan Musial's first spring homer, fell behind when Norm Cash hit one for the Tigers, then won it when Julio Gotay drove in two runs in a three-run eighth inning uprising.

Home runs by rookies Bernie Allen and Dick Hollins and another by Zoilo Versalles gave the Twins' Don Lee the runs he needed as he went the distance to beat the Orioles with an eight-hitter. Rookie Gaylord Perry blanked the Braves for eight innings while the Giants built a commanding lead with a 13-hit attack, including a two-run homer by Willie McCovey.

A grand slam homer by Al Smith and Charley Smith's solo shot won it for the White Sox. Juan Pizarro checked the Reds on five hits in seven innings before Herb Score completed the job in hitless fashion. The Dodgers tallied three in the eighth against the Indians' newly acquired Pedro Ramos with John Roseboro knocking in the winner on a foul fly out.

Roman Mejias accounted for the Colts' first run with a run-producing single, then scored the deciding run in the ninth on Jim Pendleton's double. Norm Siebern hit a homer and a triple in an 11-hit attack as the A's built an insurmountable edge behind Art Ditmar's seven shutout innings and held on to whip the Mets.

Hogan Has Putting Miseries As He Cards a 78 in Masters

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—It is one of the incredible ironies of sports that Ben Hogan, who overcame adversity, staggering odds and a near fatal automobile crash to attain the pinnacle of golf, should pale at the sight of a 5-foot putt. Yet he does — and unashamedly he admits it.

"I've never been a good putter — never in my whole career," Ben said today in assessing the demise of his once all-conquering golf game. "People have said I was a good putter because I won tournaments, but I've always been just average on the greens — sometimes worse."

Hogan's putting miseries rose up to haunt him again Thursday in the first round of the 26th Masters Tournament. Still the game's greatest golfer, perhaps, from tee to green, Hogan skied to a score of 78 because of his jittery, unsure putting.

Takes Four Shots

On one hole, he took four shots from the edge of the green. He three-putted three others.

"It's the putting that goes first in golf," said the Texas bantam, now 49 and semiretired but still a factor in every tournament in which he plays.

When Hogan started playing golf, he had a chronic hook and he was told he would starve to death if he took up golf as a profession.

He overcame early setbacks, reworked his game and through hard and intense training gained success on the tour. He became the national champion in 1948.

Then in 1949 he was severely injured in an auto-bus collision on a Texas highway. Some said he would never walk again. But he walked. Later he played golf. He could never be a champion again, they said.

Hogan showed them. He won not one more National Open championship, but three more. He won the British Open, and two Masters.

But the lowly putt—which week-end dubs and little old ladies face up to without a quiver—sometimes makes his blood run cold. "If I had my way," Hogan once said, "I would have all the greens shaped like a funnel. All you'd have to do would be to hit the green. The ball would dribble into the hole."

Pender Rules Heavy Favorite To Top Terry Downes for Title

BOSTON (AP)—Terry Downes, the champion, is a decided underdog to challenger Paul Pender, six years his senior, for their middleweight title fight Saturday night.

What's more, the ring officials and medical men have unwillingly had the spotlight thrust upon them in this unusual scheduled 15 rounder at Boston Garden.

Former titleholder Pender is the 8-5 favorite in Boston, 5-2 in Downes' London for this third and rubber meeting.

The bout will be televised nationally (ABC-TV, 10 p.m., EST) with the Boston area blacked out. The tragic death of Kid Paret from head injuries suffered in his title fight knockout defeat by Emile Griffith, charges of "Boston decisions" and the Downes-Pender medical histories bring the officials and doctors into a sharp focus seldom equalled in boxing annals.

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission, which normally waives the mandatory eight count in championship fights, has ordered it for Downes-Pender in the shadow of the Paret case.

Commissioners Tom Rawson and Ed Ueber have said Paret's death will serve to remind them that competent refereeing is a must in any fight but not make the man they designate tend to over-protectiveness. The referee and two judges will be named at fight time.

Both principals have taken extensive brain and heart examinations under commission orders.

Pender is expected to be in better shape than Downes who lost to Paret in their first meeting on a seventh round TKO when Paul split Downes' nose for 14 stitches and later plastic surgery.

The Leafs could wrap it up by winning Saturday. The sixth game also is scheduled to Toronto, where New York has lost 10 straight.

New York coach Doug Harvey said he thought play should have been stopped before Red Kelly's game-winning conversion of Frank Mahovlich's rebound at 24:23 of overtime.

Worsley, whose incredible performance time and again brought applause from the partisan Toronto fans, had fallen on the puck after Mahovlich's shot and didn't know where the puck was.

"I was lying on my back and thought the puck was somewhere around my head," Worsley said. "I lifted my head up to see if I could see it. The next thing I heard was the whistle and I thought play had been stopped, but the puck was in the net."

"I guess when I lifted my head, Kelly poked the puck in the net," Chicago, though out-played in the first period, managed to escape with a 2-2 tie at the end of the period, forged ahead in the middle session and matched Montreal efforts in the third.

Rifton Bungalow Damaged by Fire

A one story and attic 4-room bungalow on Martin Sweeney Road, off the Old Post Road, at Rifton was considerably damaged by fire Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

A neighbor discovered the unoccupied bungalow on fire and summoned Rifton Fire Department, which under command of Chief Walter Bailey, responded with four pieces of apparatus. Because of lack of water the Tillson tank truck was summoned to the scene through Mutual Aid.

Owned by Charles Guilfoyle of New York city, the house was unoccupied. The owners had been at the premises last weekend. How the fire started is not known. It had gained considerable headway when firemen arrived and before the flames were extinguished the premises had been badly "gutted".

Senate Votes 70-22 For U.N. Fund Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has given lopsided approval to President Kennedy's plea for authority to extend $100 million in aid to the financially troubled United Nations.
Through a long legislative day Thursday a coalition of Democrats and Republicans beat back efforts to limit the President's authority. What emerged for consideration by the House was a compromise measure much to the administration's liking. Passed 70 to 22, it would permit Kennedy to either lend the United Nations the money on his own terms or buy U.N. bonds bearing 2 per cent interest, repayable over 25 years.

Attached is the condition that all U.S. loans above $25 million must be matched by bond purchases by other U.N. member-nations. This isn't likely to tie Kennedy's hands. Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., floor manager for the bill, said other nations already have agreed to buy more than $32-million worth.

A ringing declaration by Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois that "I have not lost my faith in John Fitzgerald Kennedy" highlighted the legislative struggle and pointed up the partisan support for the measure.

Dirksen had sponsored the compromise jointly with the Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana.

While the proposal may be in for rougher going in the House, Senate Democratic and Republican leaders were confident the big margin piled up for it in the Senate would help turn the tide on the other side of the Capitol.

Kennedy originally asked the straight-out authority to buy half of the $200-million bond issue the United Nations is floating to meet costs of peace-keeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The compromise was worked out by the White House in negotiations with Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who originally insisted on a $100-million loan that would be repayable in 3 years and carry the going government borrowing rate of a little over 3 per cent.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, offered the short-term loan proposal as a substitute Thursday night, and it was triumphantly rejected, 72 to 20.

The bill drew the support of 22 Republicans and 48 Democrats. It was Dirksen, in a fighting, emotional speech, who made the final stand against the Hickenlooper substitute.

Dirksen said he was quite willing to agree that many things done by and in the United Nations had displeased him.

"But," the Republican leader continued, "I do not want to see this effort that began 17 years ago falter. I am not going to charge my conscience with a course of action that would go contrary to the foundation of the United Nations."
